The National Council of Organizations for the Visually Handicapped is a non-profit organization of individuals and organizations that are interested in the rehabilitation of the blind. Its primary and administrative offices are in Washington, D.C. Its members include individuals and family oriented organizations that are interested in the health, education and well-being of children and youth.

Visual impairments can be caused by congenital defects or by disease or injury. It is a chronic condition which can be prevented by the early diagnosis and treatment of eye disease.
