INTRODUCTION

There has been a discernible growth of interest in the subject of robbery in recent years. This bibliography was compiled in response to that interest, to aid those working and/or studying in the field, regardless of perspective.

In order to cater to as many needs as possible, a comprehensive range of materials is listed. Thus, specialists requiring a narrow, high focus approach may feel themselves disadvantaged. To reduce any possible disadvantage, comprehensive author and title indexes have been prepared. It is hoped, as a result, the bibliography will be of utility to both generalists and specialists.

Users are invited to advise the compiler concerning the following:

- suggestions for improvement generally
- suggestions for additional inclusions
- inaccuracies observed
- any other comment.

The sole constant concerning bibliographies is that they are out of date even before production. This bibliography will be periodically updated. Copies may be obtained on application to the Institute, at the address shewn on the coversheet.

FORMAT

This bibliography commences with lists of bibliographies searched and relevant higher theses. The main body of the bibliography is classified alphabetically. It concludes with title and author indexes. Future (and larger) editions will be classified according to type of publication.

Certain citation conventions have been ignored in an endeavor to improve ease of reference.

Material having an Australian connexion is identified by an asterisk.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The compiler and assistant compiler gratefully acknowledge the invaluable assistance of Annette Waters for both her work on the indexes and her typing.
