OFFICE OF RESEARCH PROGRAMS
LIST OF SELECTED
PUBLICATIONS &
RESEARCH PROJECTS
IN PROGRESS
JULY 1977

The Office of Research Programs is the organizational unit within the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice which develops and administers extramural research designed to improve the understanding and effectiveness of our criminal justice system. The publications described in Part I of this document are a sampling of the best research products to date resulting from grants made by one of this office's six divisions: Police, Courts, Corrections, Community Crime Prevention, Advanced Technology and Special Projects. The research projects described in Part II of this document will familiarize you with our current research projects which will result in final reports within the next year, many of which will be published. We hope that you will find some of them of use to you in your work.

W. Robert Burkhart
Acting Director
Office of Research Programs

F. SPECIAL PROGRAMS DIVISION

National Evaluation Program Phase 1 Assessments

Each Phase 1 National Evaluation Program assessment concentrates on a specific "topic area" consisting of groups of on-going projects with similar objectives and strategies. They are not meant to be definitive evaluations; rather they identify key issues, assess what is currently known about them, and develop methods for more intensive evaluation at both the national and local level.

1. Operation Identification Projects, Nelson B. Heller, William W. Stenzel, Allen D. Gill, Richard A. Kolde, and Stanley R. Schirmerman, Institute for Public Program Analysis, 1975, Grant No. 75-NI-99-0046
