I. INTRODUCTION

The Presiding Judge of the Scottsdale, Arizona Municipal Court, the Honorable Dan Roth, requested technical assistance from LEAA's Criminal Courts Technical Assistance Project at American University, through the Arizona State Justice Planning Agency. Judge Roth desired expert consultative assistance in studying the issues of potential computer applications in the court, and the development of useful and accurate statistical reports.

The Scottsdale Municipal Court has experienced a dramatic growth in its caseload in recent years; a growth that is in concert with the increase in population in the city. The operating procedures and practices of the court, however, had not been modified or refined to handle the increased caseload. Although Judge Roth has introduced a number of innovations which have updated procedures, particularly in the area of statistical reporting since he took office in April, 1977, he submitted this request as a means of addressing those problem areas which needed study and change in order for the court to effectively and efficiently handle its business.

The consultant who was selected to provide this assistance was Mr. Maurice D. Geiger. Mr. Geiger is a court management consultant and was formerly an LEAA regional office court specialist. He brought to this assignment extensive experience in the general area of court administration, and particularly in the area of court automation applications.

Through discussions with Judge Roth, it was determined that Mr. Geiger's efforts would concentrate on the question of potential computer applications in the court, and the issue of how to identify and compile relevant statistical information for court management purposes. Within the computer area, the focus was further refined to encompass the following primary areas: 1) the appropriateness and need for automation; 2) projected costs for automation; 3) available computer system options; and 4) attendant manpower requirements. In the statistical reporting area, the specific emphasis was to be on: 1) studying records retention requirements; 2) identifying key statistical information; and 3) designing a short form reporting form which would provide relevant caseflow and docketing information. (See Appendix K)

Mr. Geiger spent three days on-site in Scottsdale. During this time he worked closely with Judge Roth, who served as the local coordinator for this technical assistance study, and with the court staff. He also met with representatives of the Scottsdale Data Services department.

Mr. Geiger's analysis and recommendations are contained in the following report.

II. ANALYSIS

A. Feasibility of Computer Applications

When using normal criteria (i.e., caseload*), it appears that the Scottsdale City Court's operations could justify a computer-based case management system. The fact that the Court has one central intake point and one case processing location will facilitate the application of automation, since it serves to centralize data gathering. The information exchange responsibilities of the Court can also be used as a justification. In this regard, the Court has a responsibility to provide timely statistical information to the state court system, and case disposition data to other agencies (i.e., police departments, Department of Motor Vehicles).

The major problem in the Court's operations, however, has to do with efficient case management. If this problem is to be remedied, the Court must develop a case indexing system, maintain an inventory of pending cases, and develop a capability to rapidly retrieve case and defendant information. If a computer system is to effectively assist the Court, it must have "on-line" capabilities in order for the Court to perform the above mentioned tasks. A "batch" computer system would be useful for accounting and fiscal control purposes, but is of limited use for calendaring and docket control purposes.

Presently, the City of Scottsdale provides data processing support to various city offices through a service bureau arrangement which is a part of the City Finance Department. The computer operated by the Finance Department does not have "on-line" capabilities, and as such could only serve some of the Municipal Court's needs. The City of Phoenix, however, has "on-line" court computer system which could conceivably service Scottsdale's needs. The courts are approximately ten miles apart and thus a telephone line hook-up between the two systems would be possible. This would cost approximately $220 per month.

* The present case volume is 25,000 to 30,000 cases, including parking violations.

Before an automated system can become operational in the Court, there needs to be some "cleaning" of existing data. It was evident to the consultant that some files contain inaccurate entries and present case processing and monitoring procedures are inadequate for conversion to a computer-based system. Foremost among these concerns is the fact that there is presently no index for locating cases by a given identifier (i.e., case number, defendant name).

B. Case Management and Statistical Reporting Systems

To date, there have been minimal efforts made to develop adequate case management or statistical reporting systems in the Scottsdale City Court. It is apparent that while the city has grown rapidly over the past decade, the court has continued to operate as a low-volume, part-time system. As previously mentioned, there is no indexing system, no meaningful statistical reporting system, and even no docketing system. The only existing useful case control procedure has been introduced by Judge Roth since his appointment, and consists of a simple summary of cases and other court activities, generated on a weekly basis.

1. Present Caseflow and Calendaring Practices

Virtually all (approximately 98%) cases filed in the Scottsdale Municipal Court originate from the city's police department. The remaining cases are referred from either the City Tax Department or the Dog Pound. Each weekday, the police department sends to the court all citations given during the previous day or weekend. The citations are manually logged in and the police receive receipts for those citations which are delivered.

The Scottsdale Municipal Court has jurisdiction over criminal misdemeanor cases such as traffic offenses and cases of trespass, disorderly conduct, shoplifting, etc. It has no jurisdiction over civil matters. Rarely are defendants taken into custody, and when this does occur (usually in driving while intoxicated cases) the accused is released on his or her own recognizance. Arraignments are generally set by the police, and they inform the defendant of the date and time usually when the summons is written. Since Arizona law requires that an arraignment be held not less than five days nor more than ten days from the date of arrest, the Municipal Court holds all arraignments on every Monday, and issues an arraignment schedule (See Appendix B) each quarter. The police use this schedule for setting arraignments and bonds (See Appendix C). At the time the citation is issued, the police officer gives the accused the bond schedule, and unless the offense is a non-traffic or serious traffic violation, the officer informs the accused that they may plead guilty and pay the fine by mail. Most citations are settled in this manner. Defendants who must appear, and those who elect not to plead guilty, enter an appearance for arraignment purposes on Mondays. At this point their cases are placed on a trial schedule and the court calendar clerk prepares notices detailing the pretrial and trial dates.

At the time of arraignment defendants are asked if they desire and can afford counsel. If the person cannot afford an attorney he or she is given a state form containing a financial statement to fill out as a prerequisite to obtaining free counsel. (See Appendix E). Persons failing to appear at arraignment are sent a misdemeanor warrant (See Appendix F) which serves the purpose of a late letter warning. If they do not respond to that warning within thirty days the police are given a copy of the warrant and instructed to serve it.

Presently, pretrial hearings are scheduled approximately one month from the arraignment date. A large majority of cases are settled at this stage. In the event the defendant elects to proceed to trial, the trial date issued at arraignment is used. If it becomes necessary to change a trial date, the court notifies the defendant by form letter. A different section of this form letter is used if the defendant fails to appear for trial (See Appendix G). In practice, if a defendant fails to appear the case proceeds in their absence and they are generally found guilty.

The official court calendar is set out at Appendix H. The schedule is generally the same each week. The most interesting thing about this calendar is that it separates cases with attorneys from cases without attorneys. Judge Roth feels that such a grouping causes cases to move faster.

Juvenile cases are heard Thursday evenings before volunteer juvenile referees. All juveniles must appear with their parents.

2. Records and Documents

Under Arizona Law, Municipal Courts are not courts of record. There is a trial de novo system in Arizona and thus the record of a trial in a Municipal Court is of little legal or practical importance. Recently there has been some concern about the tape recordings of some trials being erased. Such concern, however, does not seem valid since there is no requirement to make such recordings in the first place. There is currently a question before the City Attorney as to whether or not such unrequired recordings are "public records". Whatever the answer is given to this question, it seems clear that since the Scottsdale Court is not a court of record they are not required to make or maintain such records. The records kept now become part of each case file. The most important document, however, is the citation. Because of the trial de novo doctrine, there is no real reason to keep documents for an appeal. Presently the prosecutor builds a file and after the case is adjudicated the clerk's office tears the file apart, sends disposition data to the State Records Center, sends evidence related documents to the prosecutor, keeps official court papers or orders, and destroys unneeded parts of the file.

3. Recent State Court Statistical Reporting Requirements

While the technical assistance site work was being conducted, a representative from the Arizona Supreme Court visited the Scottsdale Court and explained new state reporting requirements. Briefly, the new requirements mandated that the courts maintain an inventory of pending cases by December 31, 1977 and beginning in January 1978 each Municipal Court will be required to provide the State Supreme Court with standardized information (See Appendix J). This development should clear up the existing lack of statistical reports needed to provide the Court with useful management information.

III. FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

A. Computer Feasibility

Some sort of computer application is feasible in the Scottsdale Municipal Court. The court can use "batch" processing for the inventory accounting and the financial aspects of the Court, but the case management aspects require an "on-line" capability. This capability could be obtained in several ways but the most economical approach would be to "tie into" the Phoenix City Court computer system. Whatever approach is chosen there will need to be considerable tightening and upgrading of the present data gathering procedures before automation can be implemented.

B. Case Management and Statistical Reporting Systems

Presently there is comprehensive case management or statistical reporting systems. The present case management system works rather well due mostly to the dedication and resourcefulness of the clerks and the cooperation of the public. The present statistical reporting system is nearly useless because the court has no hard inventory data. This area has shown improvement over the past several months with the new record keeping programs introduced by Judge Roth.

It is recommended that the Court establish a docket listing. A suggested docket was drafted by the consultant during the site work, and is attached at Appendix K. It is further recommended that a cross reference index be established and maintained. Such an index should show the name of the defendant, the date of the filing and the docket number.

In regard to the statistical reporting system now being required by the State Court System, this could serve as a sound basis for the court's internal reports if two additions are made. First, there should be some way to distinguish between cases where the defendant pleads guilty to a different charge, and those cases which are dismissed. Secondly, there should be at least one more time period broken out for the age of pending cases. It is suggested that cases pending over 75 days would be appropriate measure.

C. General Operations

Notwithstanding the lack of a docketing system and an inadequate filing system, case processing in the Municipal Court is working quite well. Citizens are treated exceptionally well at the counter, and in general the clerks office, the prosecutor and the court are doing an outstanding job.

A Chief Clerk should be hired as soon as possible. As soon as is feasible, and in no case more than four months after being hired, the Clerk should participate in a formalized program or visit other courts so as to become familiar with modern case docketing and management procedures.

TRIAL NOTICE FORM

COURT DATE NOTICE

Scottsdale City Court
3739 Civic Center Plaza
Scottsdale, Arizona 85251
Telephone: 994-2442

You are hereby advised that today you were arraigned and given two court dates upon your plea of not guilty. The first court date is for your Pre-Trial Disposition Conference in the office of the City Prosecutor.

This will be the only time to discuss any pre-trial disposition of this matter. If a plea bargain offer is made by the prosecutor at the conference, it must be either accepted or rejected at that time. If the plea bargain is accepted by you, a new date will be set for you to appear before the Judge to enter a plea. If the plea bargain is rejected, the matter will proceed to trial.

In the event the matter proceeds to trial, you must appear on the trial date and at the time stated below, prepared for trial and ready to defend yourself or have your attorney defend you, if you so desire.

No continuances will be granted except upon showing of extraordinary circumstances. If you are going to retain an attorney, do so immediately. No continuances will be given for the reason that an attorney was retained too close to the trial.

If you do not appear at the trial, this non-appearance will be considered a waiver of your right to be present at your trial, and the trial will be held, possibly resulting in a conviction with accompanying sentence, which will be enforced if necessary by your arrest.

YOU WILL RECEIVE NO FURTHER NOTICE.

APPENDIX J

STATE COURT SYSTEM REPORTING FORM INSTRUCTIONS

INSTRUCTIONS FOR COMPLETING THE
MUNICIPAL COURT MONTHLY STATISTICAL REPORT

A. INTRODUCTION

Each Municipal Court is required to submit a monthly statistical report to the Supreme Court by the tenth (10th) day of each month.

B. DEFENDANTS IN TRAFFIC AND
MISDEMEANOR CASES
(Pages 1 & 2)

1. Column (1) is for the number of defendants in cases awaiting to be adjudicated on the FIRST of the month that have been pending less than 150 days.
2. Column (2) is for the number of defendants in cases awaiting to be adjudicated on the FIRST of the month that have been pending for 150 days and over.
3. The totals of Columns (1) and (2) are to be placed in Column (3).
4. Column (4) is for the number of defendants in cases in which a complaint has been filed upon during the month.
5. The totals of Columns (3) and (4) are to be placed in Column (5).
6. Column (6) reflects those defendants terminated after the acceptance of a plea of guilty or nolo contendere as well as by the forfeiture of a posted bond.
7. Those cases terminated after a dismissal by the judge are to be indicated in Column (7)
8. Column (8) is for those cases terminated after a trial by the judge without a jury.
9. Column (9) is for those cases terminated after a trial by jury. A jury trial is counted as such when the voir dire of the jury has commenced, even though thereafter the case may be settled or otherwise disposed of.
10. The totals of Columns (6), (7), (8), and (9) are to be placed in Column (10).
11. Column (11) indicates the number of defendants in cases pending less than 150 days at the END of the month.
12. Column (12) indicates the number of defendants in cases pending 150 days and over at the END of the month.
13. Column (13) is the total of Columns (11) and (12) and represents the total number of defendants in cases pending at the END of the month.

14. Column (14) is for entering the total number of defendants in cases pending at the END of the month in which warrants have been issued for failure to appear for any proceeding.
15. In traffic and misdemeanor statistical reporting, the number of defendants is recorded. For example:
  - a) If three defendants are filed upon under one case or separately, an entry of three should be placed in the filed in the month Column (4) and the respective terminations should also equal three.
  - b) If one defendant is filed upon under several separate complaints or traffic citations, the defendant is counted once for each separate complaint or traffic citation.
  - c) If several counts or charges are included in the same complaint or traffic citation against one defendant, that defendant is to be counted once only in the filed in month Column (4) which corresponds to the most serious offense charged.
  - d) If several counts or charges are included in the same complaint or traffic citation, the case is NOT terminated as to the defendant until all the counts or charges against the defendant are terminated. The termination is jury trial, even though one or more other counts or charges are terminated after a court trial, plea, or dismissal. Similarly, the termination is by court trial when at least one charge or count is terminated after a court trial, even though one or more charges or counts are terminated after a plea or dismissal. And, similarly, the termination is by plea when at least one charge or count is terminated after plea, even though one or more counts or charges are terminated after dismissal.
16. Traffic cases include ALL traffic violations which should be prosecuted on the Arizona Traffic Ticket and Complaint. Non-Traffic cases include all other criminal cases for violation of state statutes or municipal/town ordinances.
17. A criminal or traffic case is terminated when a judgment is entered in the docket. When a defendant fails to appear for any proceeding and a warrant is issued, it is reflected in the pending columns each month until the case has been terminated. In addition, Column (14) should reflect each month the number of defendants in cases pending at the END of the month in which a warrant has been issued. A criminal or traffic case is NOT considered terminated if a warrant has been issued and/or the defendant is out of jurisdiction.

C. DISPOSITION OF DEFENDANTS IN TRAFFIC AND MISDEMEANOR CASES
(Pages 1 & 2)

1. This Section is to be completed for each traffic case defendant terminated during the month by the following categories:
  - a) Defendant Acquitted: after a court or jury trial
  - b) Fine Imposed Only: as a result of a plea and/or bond forfeiture as well as a court or jury trial
  - c) Sentenced to County Jail Only: after a court or jury trial or in some cases as a result of acceptance of a plea
  - d) Probation Granted Only: for defendants in which the sentence is suspended and probation is granted after a jury or court trial and in some cases after the acceptance of a plea
  - e) Combination of Fine, Jail and/or Probation: in cases when the defendant receives more than one type of disposition
  - f) Other Sentence Imposed: where the disposition is NOT jail, fine, or probation, NOR the defendant acquitted -- i.e., alcohol rehabilitation program, restitution program, traffic safety school
  - g) Total: is the compilation of all defendants disposed of in the month.
2. One entry only should be made for each defendant terminated during the month, unless the sentencing should occur in a different month than the termination. If multiple charges and/or counts are disposed of during the month for the same defendant, the defendant's disposition is entered in ONE category only.

D. OTHER INFORMATION

1. This Section is for the purpose of reflecting additional workload and court time that may not be reflected elsewhere in the report.
2. Total numbers are to be placed beside each category on a monthly basis. Cumulative totals are NOT to be included.
