CRIME VICTIMS COMPENSATION - PHILOSOPHY

It is often said that crime victims in this country are victimized first by the criminal offender and second by our own criminal justice system. Whether or not this statement is true has long been the subject of debate. However, we do believe that the plight of the innocent victim of crime in this country has had a serious impact on the functioning of our criminal justice system during these times of increasing crime and violence.

Each year, tens of thousands of innocent people are killed or maimed and the course of their lives tragically changed because they have become victims of crime. These men and women are not just faceless names in newspapers or two minute items on the evening news. They are people, real people, and the idea of paying compensation to help them rebuild their shattered lives or the lives of their survivors is an idea long past its time.

It is the duty of government to provide for the general welfare of the people, particularly when it is beyond the means and capacity of the people individually, to provide for it. The most direct way being used to aid those injured by crime is the "victim compensation programs" now in operation in twenty six (26) states. Other states are almost certain to follow suit if Congress completes action on a bill to provide federal subsidies. An infusion of federal money would be the best guarantee that compensation efforts will be significantly stepped up in the years ahead. In previous years, the Senate passed the crime victims bill three times only to see it die in the House.

The enactment of crime victims compensation legislation is an important recognition of our government's responsibility to protect its citizens, and upon its failure to do so, compensate them for their injuries.

The programs vary according to the legislative philosophy behind their enactment. Several are based on social welfare policy with financial hardship as the prime requisite to recovery, while others are formulated on the "of right" principle, open to all who have been injured by criminal acts. A few allow recovery for property damage in addition to physical injury while the rest provide for recovery only to the extent of physical violence. The ceiling of recovery also differs greatly, as do the monetary prerequisites to eligibility. All of the programs, however, have one basic and overriding principle in common--a concentration on the victim and his plight as a result of criminal acts.

Besides Hawaii, the following American jurisdictions have victim compensation programs: Alaska, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin. The Rhode Island program has been deferred, having been enacted to take effect only following the enactment of federal legislation.

THE HAWAII PROGRAM

The Hawaii program was established in 1967. The basic objective is to aid victims of criminal acts by providing compensation for victims of certain crimes or dependents of deceased victims, and for indemnification of private citizens for personal injury or property damage suffered in the prevention of crime or apprehension of a criminal.

Since the inception of the program in 1967, the Hawaii Commission has made 1,303 awards totaling $2,027,420.62; denied 335 claims; and, had 37 applications withdrawn prior to formal hearings.

The Operating Budget for 1978 was $61,290 and covers salaries, "commission fees", rental of the office, and other incidental administrative costs. We believe our budget is very inadequate in view of our workload and productivity. In our previous reports we stressed the need for additional funding so as to assure and properly provide for the increasing number and scope of services.

The workload of the Commission continues to increase. Besides the many claims accepted and/or received in the Commission office, there are literally hundreds of letters and telephone calls inquiring about benefits under the statute. Also, the Commission receives many written inquiries and requests for information from persons in other jurisdictions. The requests for copies of our statute, annual reports and other documents have often placed a strain upon the Commission's budget. Yet, the advantages of a cooperative interchange of ideas and materials far outweighs the financial inconvenience.

The Commission continued its efforts to pursue the dual objectives of expediting its hearing process and procedures, and of further refining its substantive program.

This year, we were hampered in our operations because of our inability to obtain investigative reports from the Honolulu Police Department. There was a change in policy regarding release of police reports in the City & County of Honolulu; the procedures for duplicating copies; and the question of confidentiality of those records. The withholding of reports by the Honolulu Police Department had a very adverse effect upon the orderly processing of applications. As a result of the change in policy, staff must now go to the Police Department to review reports and it is a very time consuming process. Because of the delay, we have a backlog of over four hundred pending claims on Oahu. To the applicant, the failure to dispose of a claim with a minimum delay is both frustrating and unjustified.

STATISTICAL ANALYSIS OF CLAIMS

During the period December 16, 1977 through December 15, 1978, the Commission received 367 new applications. The number of claims received does not fully reflect the workload of the Commission. There are hundreds of inquiries by telephone, letters, and personal appearances at the office. As of December 16, 1978, there are 421 applications still pending.

Of the 296 decisions rendered in 1978, 216 resulted in awards, 78 were disallowed, and 2 applications were withdrawn for personal reasons. Summaries of each of the awards, denials, and withdrawals are contained in Appendixes A, B and C of this report.

The work of the Commission was accomplished at 55 formal meetings. In addition, the Commission held one meeting to review administrative matters, and had one meeting with officials of the Honolulu Police Department to discuss police investigative reports.

Despite our efforts to finalize more cases each year, the number of applications that must be carried forward for consideration in succeeding years continues to increase.

Details of the number of applications and orders are summarized in Table 1 of this part.

The number of applications received from the neighbor islands increased dramatically--from 82 in 1977 to 126 in 1978. Several days of hearings were held on Maui, Hawaii and Kauai, and every application from the three islands which was ready for a hearing at the time was acted upon. The Commission has sought to provide neighbor island applicants with timely consideration of their claims. Unfortunately, however, the budget approved by the legislature only provides for one trip each year to Maui, Hawaii and Kauai. Currently, there are eighty (80) claims pending on the neighbor islands.

An analysis of the 296 applications disposed of in 1978, by types of crimes, is set out in Table 3 below. As in past years, the assault cases far outnumbered all other crimes combined.

Awards in 1978 totaled $245,802.36. While Appendix "A" of this report sets forth in greater detail a financial analysis of each award, Table 4 indicates the "average" of the awards. Statistical data for the period 1968-1978 may be found under Appendix "D".

The Commission is required to consider the behavior of the victim, and whether, because of provocation or otherwise, the victim bears any share of responsibility for the crime that caused his injury or death and the Commission shall reduce the amount of compensation in accordance with its assessment of the degree of such responsibility attributable to the victim. This year, the Commission determined that 36 of the cases processed involved behavior falling within the proscription of Section 351-31(c). In 19 of those cases, the claims were denied. In 17 other cases, the awards were reduced by various percentages ranging from 10% to 90%.

Table 5 has been prepared to provide data in those areas where the amount has been reduced because applicant received collateral benefits. In 1978, recovery from collateral sources amounted to $264,842.24 and, accordingly, the orders for compensation were reduced by that amount.

Table 5 also sets out those situations whereby the award is reduced or denied because of victim's behavior, or because the victim is related to the offender or "was at the time of his injury or death living with the offender as spouse or as a member of the offender's household".

Part IV of the statute provides compensation to the "good samaritan" who assists in the prevention of a crime or in the apprehension of a criminal. In 1978, seven (7) claims were made by private citizens under Part IV (so called "good samaritan" provision) of the statute. The total value of awards attributable to property loss amounted to $100.00.

Fifty two (52) applicants were represented by attorneys. Thirty two (32) attorneys were given awards; six (6) attorneys waived their legal fees; while fourteen attorneys received no compensation because the claims were either denied or the Commission was unable to order an award for compensation. Fees awarded to attorneys totaled $3,805.00. The average of the attorneys' fees awarded amounted to $115.78.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE YEAR

In January, the Commission hosted the Sixth International Association of Crime Victims Compensation Boards Conference held at the Princess Kaiulani Hotel January 11-14, 1978. Invitations were sent to Governors of every State in the Union, Administrators of Crime Victims Compensation programs throughout the world, and leading scholars in the victims compensation field. Over one hundred persons representing seventeen American jurisdictions, Canada and England were in attendance.

The Conference was held to discuss (1) new developments in crime victims compensation programs throughout the world; (2) federal legislation; and, (3) establish lines of communication and interchange of data among the various jurisdictions.

A spirit of cooperation prevailed among all the participants, and many useful ideas and comparative approaches to common problems evolved from the Conference.

Local dignitaries who took an active part in the Conference proceedings were: U.S. Senator Spark M. Matsunaga; Lt. Governor Nelson K. Doi; Senator Dennis O'Connor; Representative Lisa Naito; and Attorney General Ronald Amemiya.

The Commission followed with great interest the progress of H.R. 7010, "Victims of Crime Act of 1977", sponsored by Rep. Peter Rodino, Chairman of the U.S. House Judiciary Committee. The Rodino Bill would create a federal program to compensate innocent victims of violent crime to the extent of personal injury, loss of earnings and other directly related costs. Unlike the Hawaii statute, however, the federal bill would not permit any compensation for property damage (to good samaritans) nor for "pain and suffering".

Under the Rodino proposal, the U.S. Attorney General would be authorized to make awards directly to qualifying victims, and provide matching grants-in-aid for State programs which meet federal guidelines. A qualifying State could receive up to 25% of the cost of the program.

While H.R. 7010 was not enacted in 1978, a new effort to enact crime victims compensation legislation is expected to surface in the 96th Congress. The Commission will continue to work for and support federal legislation to compensate innocent victims of crime.

Locally, the Commission supported H.B. 2363. The intent of the bill is to have police give notice of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act to persons who report that they are victims of qualifying crimes.

During the year, the Executive Secretary held meetings with two Victim Assistance Program Administrators (Ms. Jeanne Halvosa (Kauai) and Mr. David Yamada (Hawaii)) to strengthen lines of communication and effect maximum coordination of our programs. The Hawaii program is in its third year of operation and the one on Kauai is in its second year. Both programs focus on victims of violent crimes.

Honolulu is slated to become the center of attention in a victim-witness assistance program funded by LEAA and the City & County of Honolulu. The program headed by Mr. Robert Luck is designed to provide the following services to victims: (1) a 24-hour hotline that will provide immediate counseling for victims and services such as calling the police or an ambulance; (2) a walk-in counseling service that will provide short-term counseling and make referrals to existing social agencies for the victims, (3) a volunteer advocate program, consisting of volunteers who would work with individual victims or witnesses and provide an orientation to the criminal justice system, and (4) a plan to promote public awareness of problems faced by victims and witnesses.

Another area of activity during the year centered upon an attempt to increase the public awareness of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act. The Executive Secretary spoke to numerous community organizations and school groups including classes at both Chaminade College and Leeward Community College. At each of these speaking engagements copies of the Commission's informational pamphlet were distributed.

Throughout the year, we were very fortunate in obtaining good publicity in the form of newspaper articles, radio and television exposure.

Notwithstanding Hawaii's pre-eminence in the crime victims compensation field, there are still too few persons in the State who are fully aware of our services. Therefore, we consider the duty of advising and informing our citizenry to be an extremely important and continuing one.

We sincerely hope that the information contained in this report will be of help to the members of the legislature, the public, and other interested individuals elsewhere in understanding the role and functions of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Commission.

Respectfully submitted,

DANIEL S. UKISHIMA
Chairman
