This report could not have been completed without the cooperation of the staff of the following agencies: R.C.M.P. "K" Division, Police Departments of Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Camrose, all correctional institutions in Alberta, Statistics Canada, Alberta Bureau of Statistics and Alberta Department of Municipal Affairs. Their help is greatly appreciated.

Tammy Myshaniuk typed many versions of the complex and cumbersome tables. To our surprise, she never lost her smile. Jody Grywul and Adele Brosseau assisted with secretarial work. We extend our thanks to all. The authors are solely responsible for any errors.

A COMPENDIUM OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE STATISTICS: ALBERTA

INTRODUCTION

It has long been recognized that there exists a paradox in the administration of justice in that it is fundamentally a single process and the organizational realities are such that its principal participants are separate. The smooth functioning of the justice process as a whole is determined by how well these separate but related efforts of the various agencies are coordinated and synchronized. As a partial solution to the problem, there has been a continuous search for the methods and procedures by which the agencies exchange information needed to accomplish their separate missions.

One long range goal of the Alberta Solicitor General Department is to provide necessary tools to facilitate information exchange between the criminal justice agencies so that the steps in the justice process will occur in an orderly, planned manner. Alberta Crime Statistics project is the first step toward achieving this rather ambitious goal. One primary aim of the project is the production of annual editions of a source book of criminal justice statistics, a compilation of available province-wide criminal justice statistical data. The present report represents the first edition of this annual source book.

It is acknowledged that this initial report is far from being complete. Due to data limitations, it was not possible to achieve a high degree of consistency in the reporting format. Neither can we claim credit for currency of information contained in the report. A certain amount of error must be expected whenever a massive amount of data are to be retrieved and compiled manually. To complicate the matter there were major gaps in the available data which limited the scope of the report considerably. For example, court statistics could not be included in the report as originally planned because such information was not available in time. Subsequent editions will contain data from Alberta courts.

In retrospect it might seem foolhardy to attempt such an enormous project wherein one expected and did encounter so many limitations. Yet, we believe that this report is a successful step forward. As a result of this exercise now we have a better appreciation of what information is available and what the department's role should be in improving the quality of criminal justice statistics.

The present report consists of two major sections. The first section details crime data from police sources. Corrections data appear in the second section. A complete record of available data is contained in the appendices.

PART I - CRIME

A) Data Limitations

The major limitation as far as crime data are concerned, is the lack of available information concerning Alberta as a whole for 1977. With the exception of Medicine Hat, data were available for municipalities, although Alberta data for this particular year could not be included. Medicine Hat data were unavailable for the years 1975 and 1977. No data were available for Lethbridge, 1962 - 1969; Camrose, 1962 - 1965; and Medicine Hat, 1962 - 1966. Despite the existence of twelve municipal police forces in Alberta, only the largest five are included. In the tables, the symbol "N/A" refers to data being not available at the time of compilation of the report. As a general rule, if two or more categories are unavailable, totals are also listed as not available. However, if only one category is not available, the total is footnoted as missing that particular component.

In addition, the classification of certain crimes changed over time. For example, the offence of theft over or under fifty dollars changed to theft over or under two hundred dollars in 1972. Drug offences also presented a problem in this regard, with classification involving several different headings over time. In some cases, difficulty was encountered as to which overall heading to use, for example, "actual number", "reported or known", and "known offences". In all cases, an effort was made to ensure consistency.

Crime rates also initially presented some problems. The crime rates published by Statistics Canada for some of the earlier years were calculated on the basis of population seven years of age and older, whereas subsequent rates were based on total population. Using population figures provided by Alberta Bureau of Statistics, rates were calculated for the earlier years based on the entire population, in order to facilitate comparability with later years.

A certain degree of caution must be exercised when comparing rates per 100,000 population for Edmonton and Calgary. The problem hinges essentially on a demographic distinction between actual city populations (population living within the corporate boundaries of the city) and metropolitan area populations (population living within the corporate boundaries plus nearby surrounding communities served by the larger city). Even though Calgary presently has a larger population than Edmonton when corporate limits are considered, Edmonton actually serves a greater number of people when municipalities in the immediate vicinity are included (e.g. Sherwood Park, St. Albert, Fort Saskatchewan, etc.). By comparison, Calgary's surrounding communities are quite insignificant. For example, in 1976 the population of Calgary proper was 469,917 and Edmonton proper was 461,361; but the population of metropolitan Edmonton was 554,225 and metropolitan Calgary was still 469,917. In this report, rates are calculated on populations of the cities proper, but should be interpreted carefully in light of the increase in the Edmonton population when metropolitan population is considered.

B) Policing in Alberta

For the fiscal year 1977 - 1978, a total of $84,867,259.00 was budgeted for police activities in Alberta. This amount was distributed among the twelve municipal police forces and the "K" division of the R.C.M.P. A total of 3,308 police officers were employed. Predictably, Edmonton Calgary, and R.C.M.P. "K" division combine to consume the vast majority of the budget and manpower (see table 1.01). These three departments are responsible for approximately 94% of the police manpower and 94% of the budget.

With the exception of Camrose in 1977, the five municipal police forces show an annual increase in per capita expenditure for police activities. (see table 1.02). Edmonton has consistently maintained the highest per capita expenditure for police activities when comparing the five largest municipal police forces. In all cases, police budget per capita has almost doubled between 1973 and 1977.

Table 1.03 shows the ratio of police to population or the number of people served per police officer. Edmonton and Calgary have the lowest ratio of police to population, that is, fewer citizens are served by one police officer in these cities.

C) Crime in the Province of Alberta

The criminal code offences could be grouped into three summary categories: crimes of violence, property crimes, and other crimes. When the number of criminal code offences in Alberta is compared with the number of criminal code offences in Canada, it becomes apparent that Alberta is consistently overrepresented in all of the three summary categories. In other words, the percentage of criminal code offences in Canada which take place in Alberta always exceeds the percentage of the Canadian population which resides in Alberta. (see table 1.04). During recent years, this overrepresentation appears to be especially true for crimes of violence.

Table 1.05 is an expansion of table 1.04, with both offences and years broken down into detailed categories. Here it can be seen that assaults (not indecent) are largely responsible for the overrepresentation of crimes of violence in Alberta. Similarly, stolen goods and frauds have caused the overrepresentation of property crimes.

Both actual number and offence rate is displayed in table 1.06. It can be seen that not only the actual number of offences but also the rates have been increasing over time in all of the summary categories. The information in more detail is available in table 1.07.

Table 1.08 shows the percentage change in offence rates for the summary categories. Crimes of violence showed the greatest increase between 1962 and 1967; property crimes showed the greatest increase between 1967 and 1972; and other crimes showed the greatest increase between 1972 and 1976. Total criminal code offences had the largest percentage change during the period from 1967 to 1972. The rate per 100,000 population more than doubled for all summary categories between 1962 and 1976.

Table 1.09 details the rates and annual percentage changes between 1970 and 1976. The percentage change for the all offences category has been increasing, with the exception of 1974 - 1975. Between 1975 and 1976, drug offences display the largest percentage increase, followed closely by prostitution. Other federal statutes and gaming and betting also show substantial increases. It is interesting to note that the greatest increases occurred in victimless crimes. Conversely, municipal by-laws, frauds, and robbery display the greatest decline.

By comparison, table 1.10 shows the annual percentage change in actual number of offences. The table displays roughly the same trends as table 1.09. However, it should be mentioned that table 1.09 is a clearer indicator than 1.10 as it takes the population increases into account.

Table 1.11 indicates clearance percentages for Alberta from 1972 to 1976. Prostitution, provincial statutes, have stolen goods, homicide, and drug offences consistently have the greatest total percentage cleared. Theft over $200.00, breaking and entering, and theft $200.00 and under consistently have the lowest total percentage cleared. Assaults (not indecent) display a comparatively large percentage cleared otherwise. Prostitution and drug offences display a comparatively small percentage cleared otherwise.

Table 1.12 shows that offence rates per 100,000 population are, with few exceptions, on the rise; police per 100,000 population is on the rise; and total percentage of offences cleared is remaining rather stable.

D) Crime in Alberta Municipalities

Tables 1.13, 1.14, 1.15, 1.16, and 1.17 show percentage of Alberta population and percentage of Alberta offences for summary categories over time in the five municipalities. In table 1.13, the most apparent trend is that Edmonton is responsible for a constantly decreasing proportion of the offences in Alberta for all categories. None the less, the ratio of Edmonton offences to Alberta offences still exceeds the ratio of Edmonton population to Alberta population in all summary categories. When the ratio of Calgary population to Alberta population is compared with the ratio of Calgary offences to Alberta offences it can be seen that Calgary is consistently overrepresented for property crimes. In other words, the percentage of Alberta property crimes which take place in Calgary is greater than the percentage of the Alberta population that resides in Calgary, (see table 1.14). Even though it is difficult to identify any clear trend in so far as Lethbridge data are concerned, in table 1.15, it can be seen from the available data that Lethbridge is underrepresented in the category of crimes of violence and overrepresented in the categories of property crimes, other crimes, and criminal code total. Similarly, it can be seen in table 1.16 that Medicine Hat is underrepresented for crimes of violence. All other categories for Medicine Hat in 1976 exceed the population percentage, although it has not necessarily been the case historically. Camrose (see table 1.17) is also consistently underrepresented for crimes of violence, although Camrose is consistently overrepresented in the category of other crimes. It should be noted that the property crimes percentages fell markedly between 1972 and 1976 in Camrose. Criminal code total, however, does not deviate greatly from the population ratio, although it also falls in 1976.

Percentage of Alberta offences is presented in table 1.18 in more detail for recent years for Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Camrose. This table allows for the identification of major contributors to each of the summary categories. This identification, however, must be interpreted in light of the fact that one sub-category of a summary category is often responsible for a large percentage of the actual number contained in the summary category. In effect, when assessing a sub-category's degree of deviation from the summary category, the degree of deviation from not only the summary category but also the summary category's modal sub-category is being analysed. For example, assaults (not indecent) is often responsible for in excess of 80% of the crimes of violence. Therefore, if it is stated that city X is overrepresented for sexual offences when compared with crimes of violence total, what is actually being said is that city X is overrepresented for sexual offences when compared with assaults (not indecent) besides crimes of violence total. Figures are available in appendix 1. With this kept in mind, table 1.18 can be analysed.

With respect to crimes of violence, it can be seen that Edmonton is consistently low for homicide. Calgary, on the other hand, is consistently high for robbery and homicide, as well as sexual offences, but consistently low for assaults (not indecent). Lethbridge is consistently low for robbery and high for assaults.

When property crimes are considered, Edmonton is high for breaking and entering and low for have stolen goods and frauds. Calgary, on the other hand, is low for breaking and entering but quite high for frauds.

Lethbridge is high for theft $200 and under and have stolen goods but low for breaking and entering, theft of motor vehicle, theft over $200, and frauds.

As far as the summary category of other crimes is concerned, Edmonton and Calgary are high for the categories of prostitution and gaming and betting while Lethbridge is low for the categories of prostitution, gaming and betting, and offensive weapons.

Calgary appears to be overrepresented and Edmonton underrepresented when drug charges are compared to all offences. All three cities are low in other federal statutes and provincial statutes. Edmonton shows a high proportion of municipal by-law offences. In 1976, Edmonton has 25.5% of the Alberta population and 25.0% of the total number of offences; Calgary has 26.0% of the Alberta population and 21.4% of the total number of offences; and Lethbridge has 2.6% of the population and 3.3% of the offences.

Tables 1.19, 1.20, 1.21, 1.22, and 1.23 show the actual number of offences and offence rates for the municipalities in detail over time. From these tables, it is possible to see fluctuations in actual number and rate per 100,000 population. Rate per 100,000 population offers a more meaningful indication of changes. The accompanying graphs present a visual representation of rates for Alberta, Edmonton, and Calgary, (see graphs 1.01 - 1.23).

Table 1.24 compares rate per 100,000 population for Alberta and municipalities for all offences from 1972 to 1977. In categories with relatively small actual numbers, for example homicide, prostitution, and gaming and betting, it is difficult to make comparisons across municipalities, because a small change in actual number alters the rates significantly, especially in the smaller municipalities. However, for categories with relatively high actual numbers, certain patterns can be identified. Edmonton displays the highest offence rate per 100,000 population for the following offences: assaults (not indecent), robbery, crimes of violence, breaking and entering, theft $200 and under, property crimes, offensive weapons, and criminal code total. However, this must be interpreted in light of the distinction involving metropolitan populations, already mentioned as a data limitation.

Tables 1.25, 1.26, 1.27, 1.28, and 1.29 show percentage change in rate per 100,000 population for summary categories for the municipalities, 1962, 1967, 1972, 1977. In table 1.25, it can be seen that rates for crimes of violence in Edmonton are increasing but at a decreasing rate, and criminal code total is increasing at an increasing rate. For Calgary, in table 1.26, rates for crimes of violence have been decreasing since 1967, and rates for criminal code total have been consistently increasing, with slight fluctuations. Due to the unavailability of data, Lethbridge percentage changes in rates are only available for between 1972 and 1977, (see table 1.27). Crimes of violence, property crimes and criminal code total rates decreased and other crimes increased. Medicine Hat data only provide the opportunity to analyse the percentage change between 1967 and 1972. There is an increase in crimes of violence, property crimes, and criminal code total rates, while there is a decrease in the rate for other crimes, (see table 1.28). Camrose shows an increase in all summary categories with the exception of other crimes between 1967 and 1972, (see table 1.29).

Tables 1.30, 1.31, 1.32, 1.33, and 1.34 show the actual number of offences and percentage changes for the municipalities for 1970 to 1977. Because rate per 100,000 population takes into account population growth, a comparison of rates rather than actual numbers is more appropriate. These tables of actual numbers have been included to facilitate annual comparisons within each municipality.

Offence rate per 100,000 population and percentage change are shown for the municipalities for 1970 to 1977 in tables 1.35, 1.36, 1.37, 1.38, and 1.39. In table 1.35, Edmonton shows a general increase for robbery, theft of motor vehicle, prostitution, and drug offences; and shows a general decrease for gaming and betting. Sexual offences display a marked increase between 1976 and 1977 (98.3%). In table 1.36 for Calgary, very little can be said as all categories undergo fluctuations in rates. The same can be said for Lethbridge in table 1.37, Medicine Hat in table 1.38, and Camrose in table 1.39. It is possible to identify those categories which underwent the greatest overall change between 1970 and 1977. Edmonton, in table 1.35, shows the greatest increase in sexual offences and offensive weapons, and the greatest decline in have stolen goods and gaming and betting. For Calgary, in table 1.36, the largest increases are in prostitution and homicide, while the largest decreases are in gaming and betting and have stolen goods. In table 1.37, Lethbridge displays the greatest increases in the categories of offensive weapons and robbery, and the greatest decrease in have stolen goods. Medicine Hat, in table 1.38, shows increases in offensive weapons, robbery, breaking and entering, theft of motor vehicle, and have stolen goods. For Camrose, in table 1.39, the greatest increases are for offensive weapons, drug offences, and theft of motor vehicle, while the greatest decrease is for have stolen goods.

Table 1.40 details clearance rates for Edmonton from 1972 to 1977. Total percentage cleared for criminal code total is declining due to a decrease in the cleared otherwise category. For crimes of violence, despite an increasing percentage cleared by charge, total percentage cleared is declining due to a decrease in the percentage cleared otherwise. Property crimes show a slight decline in total percentage cleared, also due to a decrease in percentage cleared otherwise. Other crimes, although not displaying a clear pattern for total percentage cleared, show a general increasing trend for cleared by charge and a decrease for cleared otherwise. Therefore, in all summary categories of the criminal code, there is a trend toward a decline in total percentage cleared caused by a decrease in percentage cleared otherwise. Drug offences, on the other hand, display a continuous growth in total percentage cleared due to the continuous increase in percentage cleared by charge. Prostitution typically has the highest total percentage cleared and theft over $200 the lowest. Assaults (not indecent) display the largest percentage cleared otherwise.

Due to the severe data limitations, table 1.41 for Calgary is somewhat more difficult to analyse. Total percentage cleared for crimes of violence shows a very slight decrease. No definite trend can be identified for property crimes, other crimes, or criminal code total. Drug offences have a very high total percentage cleared, as do provincial statutes. Prostitution and gaming and betting typically have a very high total percentage cleared, with theft over $200 having a relatively low total percentage cleared. Overall, Calgary seems to have a greater total percentage cleared than Edmonton.

In table 1.42 information on clearance percentages for Lethbridge is displayed. Although no definite trends can be seen for summary categories over time, it should be noted that the total percentage cleared in Lethbridge is greater than the total percentage cleared in Calgary, and far exceeds that in Edmonton. Once more, the offence theft over $200 shows the lowest total percentage cleared.

Tables 1.43, 1.44, 1.45, 1.46, and 1.47 display offence rate per 100,000 population, police per 100,000 population, and total percentage of offences that are cleared for the five municipalities from 1972 to 1977. The preceding information is shown for Edmonton in table 1.43. Between the years 1972 and 1977, police per 100,000 population increased by 7.8%, offence rate per 100,000 population for criminal code total increased by 28.2%, and total percentage of criminal code total offences cleared decreased by 28.4%.

In table 1.44, for Calgary between 1972 and 1977, police per 100,000 population increased by 7.9%, criminal code offence rate increased by 2.0%, and criminal code offences cleared decreased by 9.0%. For all offences, the offence rate increased by 2.7% and percentage of offences cleared decreased by 3.6%.

Table 1.45 shows the same information for Lethbridge. Police per 100,000 population increased by 6.6%, criminal code offence rate decreased by 1.5%, and percentage of offences cleared decreased by 21.3%.

Due to the extent of unavailable data, table 1.46 for Medicine Hat is difficult to analyse. Between 1972 and 1976, police per 100,000 population increased by 11.7%, criminal code offence rate increased by 73.9%, and total offence rate increased by 73.7%. Unfortunately, data are not available for the total percentage of offences cleared for Medicine Hat.

In table 1.47, it can be seen that no data are available for Camrose concerning total percentage of offences cleared. Between 1972 and 1977, police per 100,000 population increased by 26.4% and criminal code offence rate increased by 23.2%.

E) Graphs for Alberta, Edmonton, and Calgary

A visual representation of offence rates by offence for 1962 - 1977 for Alberta, Edmonton, and Calgary are presented in this section of the report. Wherever missing data were encountered, straight line averages were used. Footnotes, which appear on the tables, concerning offence rates also apply to the graphs since data were taken directly from the tables for the construction of the graphs.

F) Criminal Code Offences - R.C.M.P. "K" Division

With reference to table 1.48 it can be seen that the percentage of Alberta offences which fall under the jurisdiction of the R.C.M.P. has more than doubled between 1962 and 1976. Even though total percentage cleared has remained fairly stable, its components have changed. Percentage cleared by charge has decreased and percentage cleared otherwise has increased quite significantly. When considering total persons charged between 1962 and 1976, the percentages for adult males has decreased (92.6% to 77.4%), while percentages have increased for adult females (2.9% to 6.1%), juvenile boys (4.1% to 13.7%), and juvenile girls (0.4% to 2.7%). Alberta as a whole shows roughly the same pattern with percentage adult males decreasing (81.9% to 70.5%) and increases in percentage adult females (9.6% to 10.1%), percentage juvenile boys (8.2% to 15.0%), and percentage juvenile girls (0.3% to 4.3%), (see appendix 1A). Between 1962 and 1976, the actual number of criminal code offences which fall under the jurisdiction of the R.C.M.P. has increased 522.5%.

G) Homicide, Sexual Offences, Drug Offences, and Offences Involving Alcohol and Driving

For the purpose of this annual report, four types of offences are dealt with in slightly more detail: homicide, sexual offences, drug offences, and offences involving alcohol and driving. Homicide is broken down into murder, attempted murder, and manslaughter; sexual offences are divided into rape and other sexual offences; drug offences are split into addicting opiate-like drugs, cannabis, controlled drugs, and restricted drugs; offences involving alcohol and driving are broken down into driving while impaired plus blood alcohol exceeding 80 mgs. and refusing a breathalyzer test.

Homicide

Table 1.49 shows that the percentage of homicides in Canada which take place in Alberta peaks in 1976 at 9.7%. Table 1.50 shows that Edmonton was consistently responsible for the largest percentage of homicides, until 1977 when the actual number of homicides in Edmonton was exceeded by the actual number of homicides in Calgary. Edmonton and Calgary combined are constantly responsible for over half of the homicides in Alberta. As can be seen in table 1.51, homicide rate per 100,000 population appears to be generally on the increase in Alberta, Edmonton, and Calgary. In table 1.52 homicide is dissected into three component parts. Attempted murder appears to be slightly more prevalent than murder. Attempted murder seems to be largely responsible for the rapid growth in the general category homicide in Calgary.

Sexual Offences

Table 1.53 indicates that a growing percentage of sexual offences in Canada are occurring in Alberta. Percentage of Alberta sexual offences for the municipalities is shown in table 1.54. The percentage for Edmonton appears to fluctuate, while the percentage for Calgary remains rather stable. Edmonton typically exceeds Calgary in actual number of sexual offences. Table 1.55 shows offence rates for sexual offences in the municipalities. The sexual offence rate is increasing in Alberta as a whole. In 1974 and 1977 Edmonton had more than double the offence rate compared with Calgary. Once again Calgary's rate remains quite stable, while Edmonton's rate fluctuates quite noticeably. Table 1.56 in effect isolates the rape component of sexual offences. Rape typically makes up less than one-quarter of the sexual offences. Edmonton exceeds Calgary in both rape and other sexual offences.

Drug Offences

In table 1.57, it can be seen that Alberta's contribution to all drug offences in Canada is on the rise except for the period 1971 to 1973. Table 1.58 displays the distribution of Alberta drug offences among the municipalities. In 1971 and 1972, the Edmonton percentage was much greater than the Calgary percentage, but since 1974 the percentage in Calgary has exceeded the percentage in Edmonton. In table 1.59, it can be seen that the drug offence rate is generally increasing. Calgary in 1976 shows the highest drug offence rate. Table 1.60 displays the divisions of drug offences. Offences concerning addicting opiate-like drugs show signs of decline, while cannabis offences, which represent in excess of 90% of total drug offences, show tremendous increases. It appears that an increasing proportion of drug offences are related to cannabis, as cannabis was responsible for only 46% of total drug offences in 1971 and 95% of total drug offences in 1976 in Alberta.

Alcohol and Driving

Table 1.61 shows the number of offences involving alcohol and the operation of a motor vehicle for Edmonton and Calgary. The total number of offences in Edmonton peaked in 1972 and in Calgary in 1977. Since 1974 the number of offences in Calgary has surpassed the number of offences in Edmonton. With the exception of 1972, Calgary has had a greater number of offences involving refusing a breathalyzer test. In 1977, Calgary had over 50% more alcohol and driving related offences than Edmonton.

PART II - CORRECTIONS

A) Data Limitations

Since monthly statistical reports were not prepared by the Belmont Community Corrections Centre, it was not possible to include statistical compilations for this institute in the present report. In addition, monthly statistical reports for other institutions often were not complete. For example, no information was available concerning the demographic profile of the inmates in Calgary Remand and Detention Centre. In general, the information compiled in this report covers a seventeen month time span (January 1977 - May 1978) for the following institutions: Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (male), Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (female), Lethbridge Correctional Institution, Peace River Correctional Institution, Nordegg Base Forestry Camp, Calgary Remand and Detention Centre (male), and Calgary Remand and Detention Centre (female). A complete record of the available corrections data can be seen in Appendix 2. When percentages were calculated, the total often did not add to exactly 100% due to rounding. Totals were still listed as 100%, even though the components added up to 99.9% or 100.1%. An apparent discrepancy involving admissions, discharges, and prisoners in goal at end of month surfaces for the Calgary Remand and Detention Centre. This discrepancy is the result of the practice of including all admissions to city cells, whether they make it to C.R.D.C. or not, but including only C.R.D.C. discharges and not those discharges from city cells.

B) The Institutions

Tables 2.01 - 2.05 give an indication of the inmate volume within each institution. Although monthly or seasonal trends within each institution are difficult to discern, table 2.04 does give an indication of the relative institutional population size. Fort Saskatchewan (male) displays the greatest number of inmates, followed by Calgary Correctional Institution. Lethbridge Correctional Institution, Peace River Correctional Institution, and Calgary Remand and Detention Centre (male) display comparable population sizes, followed by Nordegg Base Forestry Camp, Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (female), and Calgary Remand and Detention Centre (female).

Table 2.06 shows the average number of inmates attached to forestry camps. Naturally, Nordegg Base Forestry Camp has the greatest number, followed by Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (male) and Calgary Correctional Institution. Originally Lethbridge Correctional Institution sent more inmates to forestry camps than did Peace River Correctional Institution, but this situation has reversed itself in recent months.

Tables 2.07, 2.08, 2.09, and 2.10 detail the Indian and Metis populations of the institutions. Whereas Lethbridge Correctional Institution has more Indians than does Peace River Correctional Institution, the reverse is true where the number of Metis is concerned.

Tables 2.11 and 2.12 show the number of first offenders and repeaters admitted to the institutions. Generally, Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (male), Calgary Correctional Institution, Lethbridge Correctional Institution, Peace River Correctional Institution, and Calgary Remand and Detention Centre (male) admit a greater number of repeaters than first offenders, while Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (female) and Calgary Remand and Detention Centre (female) have fluctuating proportions.

C) Demographic Profile of Inmates

Table 2.13 displays the age breakdown for inmates in the various institutions for four months. Median age was calculated for each of the four months; then the mean of the four medians was calculated to determine the average age of inmates for each institution. Nordegg Base Forestry Camp shows the lowest average age (19.0), followed by Peace River Correctional Institution (22.5), Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (male) and Calgary Correctional Institution (23.0), and Lethbridge Correctional Institution and Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (24.0).

Table 2.14 shows the education of inmates. Averages, calculated in the same manner as for age, indicate that Peace River Correctional Institution has the lowest average education of inmates (8.75), followed by Lethbridge Correctional Institution (9.0). Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (male and female) both show averages of 9.5, while Calgary Correctional Institution and Nordegg Base Forestry Camp have averages of 10.0.

The marital status of inmates is shown in table 2.15. In all institutions for the four selected months, the modal category is single. It should be noted that the category common law was not always included in the monthly reports. In general, the second largest marital status category is married.

Table 2.16 shows the habits of inmates for the four selected months. It is interesting to note that the majority of the female inmates in Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution are classified as intemperate. In all other institutions, the majority of the inmates are classified as temperate. The institution with the second greatest proportion of intemperate inmates is Lethbridge Correctional Institution.

Table 2.17 shows the offences committed by inmates for the four months. Offences relating to the right of property are responsible for the greatest proportion of offences, followed by provincial statutes and offences against the person and reputation.

Sentences of inmates are displayed in table 2.18. Nordegg Base Forestry Camp inmates are serving the longest sentences, with over half of the inmates having sentences of between twelve months and two years. By comparison, Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution (male and female) and Lethbridge Correctional Institution have over half of the inmates with sentences under two months. With one exception, Peace River Correctional Institution inmates have over half of their sentences under two months. Calgary Correctional Institution inmates appear to have slightly longer sentences than inmates in the other institutions, with the exception of Nordegg Base Forestry Camp. Female inmates in Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institution apparently have the shortest sentences.
