INTRODUCTION

The Sentences Imposed Chart was developed to augment general statistics on sentencing appearing in Appendix Table D-5 of the Annual Report of the Director. The primary purpose of the Chart is to provide U.S. Probation Officers with more specific offenses and sentences to use in their presentence reports to judges.

The first edition was published in 1977, the year after the Statistical Analysis and Reports Division was able to classify offenses according to titles and sections of the United States Code. This first publication presented sentences according to offense codes with about half of the offenses further defined by title and section. Organization, accuracy, and completeness of the data improved in subsequent publications; however, distribution was limited to Federal judicial personnel. Since the new format in this edition is more suitable for release outside the judicial family, the 1981 Sentences Imposed Chart is the first to "go public."

If the Sentences Imposed Chart is new to you, read all of introductory material in the pages immediately following. There you will find: explanations of how offenses and sentences are classified; instructions for locating and reading data and averages; cautions concerning the use of the published average; and alternatives for obtaining other averages and summaries for groups of sentences. U.S. Probation Officers and others who have had experience with previous Charts should also review this material to be aware of revisions in this year's presentation. In either case, to correctly interpret the data you need the companion publication U.S. Criminal Offense Citations Manual (latest edition March, 1981).

Access to previous Charts was restricted to prevent misconceptions of Federal sentencing practices. Although the data can still be misinterpreted, this year's Chart is being released in recognition of the public sector's interest in obtaining the same information available to members of the judicial system. The cautions set forth in the caveat which follows are most urgent to consider. Experience and good sense must prevail in properly applying these statistics. Questions or requests for further explanations can be addressed to:

CAVEAT

This Sentences Imposed Chart is a compilation of sentences imposed in the 95 district courts during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1981. Individual sentences include all terms imposed on one defendant in one case and are shown under the most serious offense for which there was a conviction. The Chart does not distinguish between a sentence imposed for conviction on a single count and one which represents the sum of terms imposed for multiple counts.

Split Sentences includes jail terms of six months or less on one count with probation on a separate count as well as regular split sentences imposed on a single count. Sentences imposed under provisions of the Youth Corrections Act (YCA, Title 18 U.S.C. Section 5010), the Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act (FJDA, Title 18 U.S.C. Section 5037), and Indeterminate sentences imposed under Title 18 U.S.C. Section 4205(b) are not separately shown and therefore are included with regular terms under imprisonment and probation. Finally, the Chart displays sentences imposed when the defendant was first sentenced, exclusive of commitments for a presentence study. Amendments to sentences pursuant to Rule 35, Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, are not reflected in these statistics nor are sentences imposed upon remand from the circuit court of appeals.

There is no attempt to endorse any particular length of sentence for a specific offense, nor to present the average (mean) as the most representative sentence. The average may have some statistical value, but there is no average crime or average offender. Characteristics of the defendant and the offense, with other information not shown here, contribute to the determination by a judge of the appropriate sentence.

All of these factors, as well as the possibility of errors in submission or entry of sentence data, must be taken into account when using this Chart for statements about Federal sentencing patterns. Indeed, separate sentences are provided to highlight the unusually high or low sentences which tend to distort the published averages and to provide the range and frequency of all sentences imposed.

Classification of Offenses and Sentences

Each entry represents the total sentence imposed on one defendant in one case. Sentences imposed on other defendants in the same case or on the same defendant in other cases are shown separately. Consecutive sentences imposed on convictions of separate charges within a case are added together and shown under the most serious offense.

The offense selected is the offense for which the longest term was imposed. If two or more equal terms represent the longest term, the offense carrying the highest severity code (specified in the U.S. Title and Code Criminal Offense Citations Manual) is shown.

For example, if a defendant is convicted of three auto theft violations in the same case and sentenced to two 4-year terms to run consecutively and a 3-year term to run concurrently, the total sentence is shown as eight years for auto theft. For a defendant who receives ten years for a bank robbery, five years for carrying away money from the bank (larceny), and five years for carrying a weapon (all to be served consecutively), the total sentence is shown as 20 years and the offense recorded as bank robbery.

Charges for aiding and abetting, accessory, crimes committed on special maritime or territorial jurisdictions, and conspiracies are shown under Title 18 U.S.C. Sections 2, 3, 13, and 371, respectively. The A.O. four-digit offense code indicates the substantive offense. Examples are: 18.2-4700, aiding and abetting in mail fraud; 18.13-2400, burglary in a territory (Virgin Islands, Canal Zone, Guam, or Northern Marianas) or on a military, Indian, or park reservation, etc; 18.371-7830, conspiracy to violate firearms regulations, and so forth. Coding of drug offenses under Title 21 is explained in a special section to follow.

Locating and Reading Data and Averages

Matching the title/section to the A.O. code

Sentences are displayed according to the titles and sections for which convictions were obtained. Because a single title and section can describe several offenses, the four-digit A.O. offense code is used as an additional classification. A general description of each A.O. code is provided in the appendix. To obtain all the offenses and offense levels specified by a single title and section, please refer to the U.S. Title and Code Criminal Offense Citations.

As an example, if your research concerns a conviction for "Theft from Indian Tribal Organization" under Title 18 U.S.C. Section 1163, the first step is to locate this title and section in the Offense Citation Manual. (See example below from March 1981 edition.)

18:1163	_____	EMBZM FROM INDIAN TRIBAL ORGANIZATIONS;
		EMBEZZLEMENT, OTHER--4390/FELONY-4	327		18.1163-EF
			225		18.1163-EM
		LARCENY & THEFT, FELONY OTHER--3700/FELONY-4	327		18.1163-TF
		LARCENY & THEFT, MISDEMEANOR OTHER--3800/MISD. -3	225		18.1163-TM

This display indicates that the statute covers both embezzlement and theft at the felony and misdemeanor levels. In order to locate the exact statistics, decide first which crime and which level applies to your research. (Levels of offense are defined in Title 18 U.S.C. Section 1.) Then turn to the citation in this Chart. Titles are arranged in ascending order, as are the sections within them, and listed generally within the Table of Contents.

Presentation of sentencing data for the sample title and section begins on page 114 in this chart and continues to the next page. The sample data are reprinted here for discussion.

Each line in a column represents a complete, unique sentence, to include months of imprisonment, months of probation, and dollar amounts of fines where appropriate. Defendant counts tell the number of defendants who received each particular sentence. If a sentence includes more than one element, the dominant element determines its placement into the appropriate major column, defined as follows.

Definition of Sentence Columns

Imprisonment - Since this is the most severe element, all sentences that include some period of imprisonment appear in this column with the exception of "split sentences," shown separately (see below). Life sentences are coded as 540 months. YCA sentences under Title 18 U.S.C. Section 5010(b) are coded as 48 months, which is the maximum period such defendants are incarcerated. Sub-columns are provided under imprisonment to show probation terms and fine amounts when one or both are imposed in addition to a prison term. Most terms under imprisonment will not include those elements.

Probation - Sentences are displayed in this column only when there is no term of imprisonment. Terms of probation are limited to 60 months under Title 18 U.S.C. Section 3651, although separate probation terms imposed consecutively may aggregate to a higher total. An additional sub-column under Probation shows fine amounts for those defendants sentenced to probation with a fine.

Split Sentences - Sentences of six months or less imprisonment to be followed by a term of probation are shown in this column (Title 18: U.S.C. 3651). A few of these sentences are not "split" sentences by strict definition because the Chart does not distinguish between prison and probation imposed on a single count and on separate counts. The sub-column for fine amount is again included to accommodate sentences where a fine was also imposed.

Fine Only - Sentences are shown in this column only when the sole element is a fine.

Other - This category reflects a variety of sentences including: deportation, sentence suspended; imposition of sentence suspended; four days or less imprisonment; sentenced to time already served; and remitted or suspended fines. The number and proportion of defendants receiving these sentences are shown. The terms of the sentences are not shown and averages do not apply. Note: Unlike Appendix Table D-5 Annual Report of the Director, life sentences are shown under Imprisonment, and not under Other.

Explanation of Defendant Counts, Percentages, and Averages

The total number of defendants and the average (mean) sentence are provided after the sentences for each title and section. These counts and averages are shown by type of sentence together with the percentage of defendants (shown in parentheses) who received that specific type of sentence. (Note: In using percentage, it's best to indicate both the percent and the total from which it was derived). When there is more than one level of offense (felony, misdemeanor, petty) defined within the same title and section and A.O. four-digit offense code, additional subtotals separate the data.

Explanation of Sample Data

Theft-felony

The first group of data under Title 18 U.S.C Section 1163 is felony under A.O. Code 3700, which is theft. Under Imprisonment, there are four defendants who received individual terms of 34 months, 48 months, 60 months, and 64 months. None of the sentences included supplemental probation terms or fines. Under Probation, one defendant received a term of 12 months; one received 18 months; seven defendants were issued 24-month terms; 14 defendants received 36 months; another defendant received 36 months and a fine of $1,000; two defendants drew 41 months; and the last four defendants received terms of 48 months, 50 months, 53 months, and 60 months, respectively. Under Split Sentences, one defendant was to serve one month in jail and 36 months on probation, and another defendant was to serve two months in jail and 36 months on probation. Totals, Percentages, and Averages are just above the dotted line that extends completely across the page. The summary for this offense is 36 total defendants; four defendants (11 percent) imprisoned for an average of 52 months; 30 defendants (83 percent) given probation averaging 34 months with one of the defendants receiving a fine of $1,000; and two defendants (6 percent) given split sentences for which the average was two months in jail followed by 36 months probation. No Fine Only and no Other sentences were reported.

Theft-misdemeanor

The second set of data under the same title and section shows four defendants sentenced for misdemeanor thefts. The A.O. Offense Code for this group is 3800 because the general offense coding scheme contains differing codes for felony and misdemeanor thefts. However, differing levels within the same title and section often do not require a change in A.O. Offense Code (see below).

The four defendants in this portion of the example all received probation terms. Two of the probation terms, one for 12 months and one for 24 months, were without fine. Two other terms of 24 months were imposed with fines of $350. The totals for misdemeanor theft show four defendants, all of whom (100 percent) received probation averaging 21 months, with two of the four defendants receiving an average supplemental fine of $350.

Embezzlement-felony

Data for embezzlement offenses, both felony and misdemeanor, are indicated by the A.O. Offense Code 4390. For felony convictions, two defendants were sent to prison for 30 months, but one of them also received a probation term of 60 months in addition to the prison term. Under Probation, one defendant received a term of 12 months; two received 24 months; two received 36 months; and one received 60 months. Under Split Sentences, a single defendant received a split sentence of two months in jail and 18 months probation. The totals for this offense are: nine defendants sentenced for embezzlement at the felony level; two (22 percent), sentenced to imprisonment for an average of 30 months with one also receiving a probation term of 60 months; six defendants (67 percent) given probation averaging 32 months; and one defendant (11 percent) issued a split sentence of two months in prison followed by 18 months probation. The single split sentence is also shown as the average sentence because it is the only term in that column.

Embezzlement-misdemeanor

A dotted line that extends only to the column A.O. Offense Code signals a break in offense level within the same specific offense. Below that line appear sentences imposed for embezzlement misdemeanor convictions. Three defendants in this group were issued probation terms, all for 24 months with two of the three defendants also receiving a fine of $250. Under Fine Only, two defendants were ordered to pay fines of $150 and $200 each. The averages for this level of offense are again underlined with a broken line that ends at the A.O. Offense Code column. The averages are: five total misdemeanor defendants; three defendants (60 percent) received an average probation term of 24 months and two of those three received supplemental fines averaging $250; and two defendants (40 percent) received only a fine averaging $175.

Embezzlement-overall

For purposes of comparing the data in this Chart to other data in a more general format, totals and averages are provided combining the data for different offense levels within the same title and section and A.O. Offense Code. In the example, the overall totals for embezzlement immediately follow the subtotals for the last offense level and are underlined by a broken line extending across the entire page. For defendants convicted of felonies and misdemeanors under embezzlement, the averages are: 14 total defendants; two defendants (14 percent) were imprisoned for an average of 30 months, with one of those defendants also receiving 60 months probation; nine defendants (64 percent) received probation terms averaging 29 months with two of those defendants also fined an average of $250; one defendant (seven percent) received a split sentence of two months in jail and 18 months probation; and two defendants (14 percent) were ordered only to pay a fine, averaging $175. There were no Other sentences.

Summary

In order to locate and interpret specific sentencing data within a title and section, match the A.O. four-digit code with the title and section in the Offense Citations Manual. Dotted lines that extend across the entire page mark the end of all data pertaining to an offense. Abbreviated dotted lines separate data pertaining to different offense levels within the same general offense. The overall averages are the last item to appear in each offense group, and are the only averages appearing when data is present for only one offense level within a general offense.

Percentages are shown for the total number of defendants in each major sentence column only. They may add to more or less than 100 percent due to standard rounding. In addition, wherever there is at least one defendant in a category, the percentage for that column is shown as at least one percent, although the true proportion for that type of sentence may compute to only a small fraction.

Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970 (DAPCA) Offenses

Three factors that must be considered to determine the correct four-digit code for drug offenses are: (1) the exact title and section of conviction; (2) the schedule of the drug or drugs; and (3) whether the drug is marihuana, a narcotic, or a controlled substance. This information is in the court records, and generally on the JS-3 statistical card submitted by the clerk of the district court to the A.O. to close a defendant's case. The category of drug is coded into the first two digits of the A.O. four-digit offense code under the following general definitions:

Code	Definition
65xx	- Marihuana and its derivatives, including hashish.
67xx	- Narcotic drugs not obtainable by prescription. Two that are commonly abused are heroin and cocaine.
68xx	- Controlled substances obtainable only by prescription or not customarily used in human medicine. Examples are barbituates, amphetamines, animal tranquilizers such as PCP, and hallucinogens.

The third digit in the four-digit code is the schedule of drug as defined in Title 21 U.S.C. Section 812.

The fourth digit, defining the specific crime is:

Code	Description of Specific Drug Related Crime
1	- selling, distributing or dispensing; and possessing with intent to sell, distribute or dispense;
2	- importing;
3	- manufacturing;
4	- possession;
5	- falsifying records or prescriptions or using a false prescription.

Thus, sentences for possession of marihuana are found under the appropriate title and section with the four digit code 6514. The code for the crime of selling marihuana is 6511; selling cocaine, a Schedule II narcotic, is 6721; importing heroin, a Schedule I narcotic, is 6712. Making the controlled substance of Barbital (Schedule IV) is 6843. Possessing LSD (Schedule I) is 6814. Once the proper four-digit code is determined, refer directly to the Sentences Imposed Chart for the specific title and section.

Cautions in Quoting Average (Mean) Sentences

The average sentences presented in this chart are actually "mean" sentences. They provide a central measure of sentences which can vary greatly. As a result, averages can be unduly affected by sentences that are either much higher or much lower than the rest of those in a group. For example, if nine defendants are sentenced to one month imprisonment and a tenth defendant is given 120 months, the resulting average of 13 months does not present a true picture of sentencing patterns for that particular offense.

In contrast, sentences that are extremely low in comparison to the other sentences in a group reduce the average sentence. The average of six fines, three for $5,000 and three for $10,000, is $7,500. When a seventh fine of $100 is added to the group, the average becomes $6,443 - more than $1,000 less than the average of the first six fines.

The distortion caused by these extremes is increased as the number of defendants decreases. If, in the imprisonment example, the defendants are reduced to five, four with one month and the fifth with 120 months imprisonment, the average becomes 25 months. This is 24 months more than the term imposed in 80 percent of the cases.

The offense groupings in Appendix Table D-5 of the Annual Report of the Director are broad enough to reduce the effects of extreme sentences. These general categories, however, are subdivided into specific titles and sections in this publication, creating many totals with less than five defendants. This increases the possibility that the average may not accurately reflect the sentences actually imposed. Further, when the total number of sentences is small and those sentences differ greatly, the average is no longer useful. For Federal probation officers preparing sentencing statistics in presentence reports for the court, we recommend that in such situations the individual sentences be provided in place of the average, or as supplemental information or footnotes.

Other alternatives for determining a single figure that best represents a group of widely varying sentences are presented in the next section.

Alternatives to the Computed Average (Mean)

The mean is not the only measure for indicating the typical sentence imposed for any specific offense, nor is it necessarily the best method. It is however, the most commonly used and therefore easily understood, and it has a history of use in other sentencing statistics.

In the discussion that follows, several alternatives are presented for recomputing totals, taking into account different interpretations. You are encouraged to use them to suit your needs. Be sure, however, to annotate any adjustments you make to the averages presented in this Chart when you are quoting this publication as the source for your conclusions.

Average Excluding Sentences Above the Maximum Term or Fine for One Count

The second sample shows sentences imposed under Title 18 U.S.C. Section 842 (H) (A.O. Code 9994) from page 98. This offense involves the shipping, receiving, storing, or other handling of stolen explosives. The maximum penalty provided for a conviction on a single count is ten years imprisonment and/or a fine of $10,000. Under Imprisonment in the sample, there is one sentence of 300 months, which evidently resulted from consecutive sentences imposed in separate counts. To determine the average sentence for conviction on a single count, eliminate this sentence and recompute the average for the remaining 12 imprisonment sentences.

To calculate an average, each sentence is multiplied by the number of defendants receiving that sentence, the resulting products are added, and the sum is divided by the total number of defendants in that sub-column. The first calculation beneath the sample data shows that the total prison months is 912; dividing this figure by the 13 defendants in the imprisonment column produces the published average of 70 months. In the second calculation, the sentence of 300 months has been eliminated reducing the total imprisonment months to 612; dividing this by the remaining 12 defendants produces an average of 51 months. The difference of 19 months between the published average and this alternative average reflects the distortion that can occur from just one unusually long sentence.

Average Excluding Upper and Lower Extreme Sentences

Another alternative is to eliminate the upper and lower ten percent of the individual entries and recompute the average for the remaining 80 percent of the data. Using the Imprisonment data in the sample, both the highest sentence of 300 months and the lowest sentence of six months have been discarded leaving a total of 606 imprisonment months. Dividing by the remaining 11 defendants provides an average sentence of 55 months. This method relieves distortion from extremes at both ends of the data group, and thus provides a more balanced adjustment. It is not recommended, though, for offenses showing less than ten sentence entries.

Averages for Total Prison Months, Probation Months or Fine Amounts

The total amount of fines imposed under a specific title/section and level, whether in conjunction with prison or probation or both, or as the sole element of a sentence, can also be calculated. In the sample data, there are three fines shown under the Fine Only column, but there are also five other fines within the offense group — one for $300 and three for $1,000 that were imposed in addition to probation terms, and another fine of $500 that was imposed in addition to a split sentence. The total for these five fines ($3,800) and the total for the three fines under Fine Only, ($3,100) brings the total of all fines imposed for this specific offense and level to $6,900. Dividing this sum by eight, which is the total of all defendants receiving a fine regardless of the presence of other elements in their sentences, produces an average of $863. The same combining and averaging can be done for prison and probation totals.

In those instances where the total number of individual entries for any one sentence element are too numerous for quick recalculation, there is another method that will produce approximately the same result. Multiply averages shown in each column for a particular element by the subtotal numbers of defendants receiving that element. In the example under Probation, the four fines that were imposed with probation terms averaged $825. Multiplying 825 by 4 shows that these fines totaled $3,300. Repeat this procedure for the same element in the other columns. The three fines under Fine Only averaged $1,033; multiplying this average three times yields a total of $3,099. (Because of rounding, this total is $1 less than the total gained by adding each fine.) There was only one fine of $500 under split sentences. Adding the three products of $3,300, $3,099, and $500 provides a total of $6,899. Divided by eight, the combined average is $862.

The Median and the Mode

The median is the sentence in the middle (as in "median strip" on a highway). Because the middle is not affected by extreme variances, many statisticians prefer the median, in some circumstances, as a measure of central tendency.

The median sentences in the Imprisonment, Probation and Fine Only columns have been underlined in all groups of more than five sentences (e.g. 38). The median is not identified in the Split Sentence category because of the diverse elements. In some instances where the median is actually a computed value between two sentences (even-numbered totals), it is written separately and underlined

(e.g. $\underline{42} < \begin{matrix} 36 \\ 48 \end{matrix}$)

The final alternative, the mode, is the easiest to determine but has probably the least validity as an indicator when used by itself. It is the most frequently imposed sentence. The mode is identified in offense groups of more than five sentences with an asterisk (e.g. *38). The presence of more than one asterisk indicates that two or more terms, imposed an equal number of times, represent the mode.

The mode is not identified when there was not one prison or probation term or fine amount imposed at least four times for that offense. In addition, because the data are not perfect, terms or fine amounts that were imposed nearly as frequently as the mode (within one or two of the mode when more than ten) are identified with a secondary reference mark (e.g. †38).

The mode is useful for comparison with the median and the mean. For Imprisonment in the sample data, the mean is 70 months, the median is 54 months, and the mode is 60 months. The mode in this instance adds to the overall sentencing picture because it falls between the median and the mean, and modifies both.

Conclusion

All of these alternatives are useful for correcting misleading interpretations that can be indicated by only a single measure of central tendency. Apply them to check the relevance of the published average and to counteract the effects of sentences that are unusually higher or lower than the other sentences in an offense group.

The D-5 Table and the Sentences Imposed Chart

Two major differences between this Sentences Imposed Chart and the presentation of the same data in Appendix Table D-5 of the Annual Report are the total number of sentences and the manner in which the average sentence is obtained.

The Appendix Table D-5 accounts for the number of defendants convicted during the year. A system of "duplicate defendant accounting" is employed in the D-5 program to ensure that only the case involving the most serious conviction is shown when the same defendant is convicted in separate cases. The Chart, on the contrary, lists the sentence for each separate case in which the same defendant was convicted during the year.

Within the Chart, the Imprisonment category includes all sentences showing a term of imprisonment. Appendix Table D-5 separately displays Indeterminate terms imposed under Title 18 U.S.C. Section 4205(b)(1) or (2) and Youth Correction Act terms. Life sentences, too, are excluded from imprisonment in Appendix Table D-5 and shown instead under "Other."

These differences affect the average sentences shown in each presentation and comparisons should be made only with appropriate caution. The Sentences Imposed Chart, because it displays all the elements of each sentence under specific offense citations, is recommended to probation officers as the source for national statistics in preparing presentence reports.
