INTRODUCTION

Public outrage and concern with the incidence of crime and the handling of criminal offenders has led to frequent calls for greater public criminal justice expenditures in order to more effectively and decisively deal with specific crime related issues. The scope of the problem and the size of the investment that tax payers already make is often lost from public view, and becomes submerged in a maze of interlocking, overlapping, and fragmented governmental jurisdictions and programs.

Currently, 3,000 public agencies in over 1,600 governmental jurisdictions operate or support criminal justice programs.<sup>1</sup> Activities range from local policing, through court processing, prosecutorial and defense services, to probation and correctional activities. Although these activities are generally acknowledged to be expensive, there has yet to be a regular, comprehensive collection of system wide information undertaken by any State agency to substantiate how expensive this system actually is. Consequently, policy and budgetary decision making is often based upon inaccurate, fragmented and inconsistent information. For example, a decision by the State to provide additional funding to localities to enhance resources available for a more vigorous prosecution of certain categories of offenders may result in the intended outcome of increased sentences to incarceration for the targeted offenders. However, budgetary allocations to provide funding for the resulting increase in the number of offenders sentenced to local jails or State prisons may not have been anticipated nor planned.

Hard decisions must be made by our governmental and legislative leaders in the allocation of public dollars when choices must be made between the building of more hospitals, the funding of better public education programs, or the promotion of improved public safety measures. These decisions are not necessarily easy, nor are they always clear cut. It seems apparent that the more comprehensive and understandable the information made available to decision makers when these decisions must be made, the greater the opportunity for an efficient and effective allocation of scarce resources.

In an attempt to present a "snap shot" of criminal justice spending over the last several years, the Office of Program Development and Planning has collected information identifying criminal justice expenditures throughout New York State for all town, village, and city governments. Appropriations made to State agencies dealing with criminal justice matters have also been identified for the same time period. In addition, preliminary information on the number of personnel employed by the State and by localities in certain criminal justice activities has also been provided.

It is hoped that this report will provide a basis for an ongoing effort to collect criminal justice expenditure data in New York State. Sustained effort in this regard should also allow the State to improve the quality of information so obtained for future years through regularization of the data collection process.

HIGHLIGHTS

Expenditures for criminal justice functions and activities provided by State and local governments increased from $2,594,460,498 in 1978 to $3,201,356,683 in 1981, or approximately 23.4% (see Table 1). Reported Part I offenses also rose between 1978 and 1981 from 1,024,047 to 1,213,148, respectively, or an increase of 18.5%. During the same period, however, the total number of personnel employed within certain criminal justice functions or agencies remained relatively constant.

Although total criminal justice expenditures grew 23.4% between 1978 and 1981, when adjusted for inflation, expenditures decreased approximately 11.5% (see Figure 1).

During fiscal year 1980<sup>2</sup>, approximately $3.029 billion in New York State was spent by all levels of government for various criminal justice services and programs. Of this amount, 47 percent were expenditures by State criminal justice agencies, 32 percent by New York City criminal justice agencies, and 21 percent by the criminal justice agencies of the remaining local governmental jurisdictions (see Figure 2).

<sup>2</sup>1980 was the fiscal year for which the most complete information was available.

Figure 2

1980 Criminal Justice Expenditures for State, Local, and New York City Governments

TOTAL - 3,029,102,652

State agencies spent $1,342,161,000 during 1980-81. The highest percentage of State expenditures (45.4%), was allocated to the Department of Correctional Services, followed by the Judiciary with 28.1% and the Division for Youth with 6%. All other State criminal justice agencies accounted for 15.9% of the total State criminal justice budget.

Local governments outside New York City, spent $622,778,652 during 1980-81. The largest single category of expenditures was 57.6% for police services. The next largest category was 14.3% for correctional programs. Approximately 20% of the total was allocated to the other criminal justice services.

During the same period, New York City committed $977,678,000 to criminal justice activities. Again, the single largest category of expenditures was for police services, or 72% of the total committed. This was followed by 14.8% for correctional programs. The remaining 13% was allocated to other criminal justice programs.

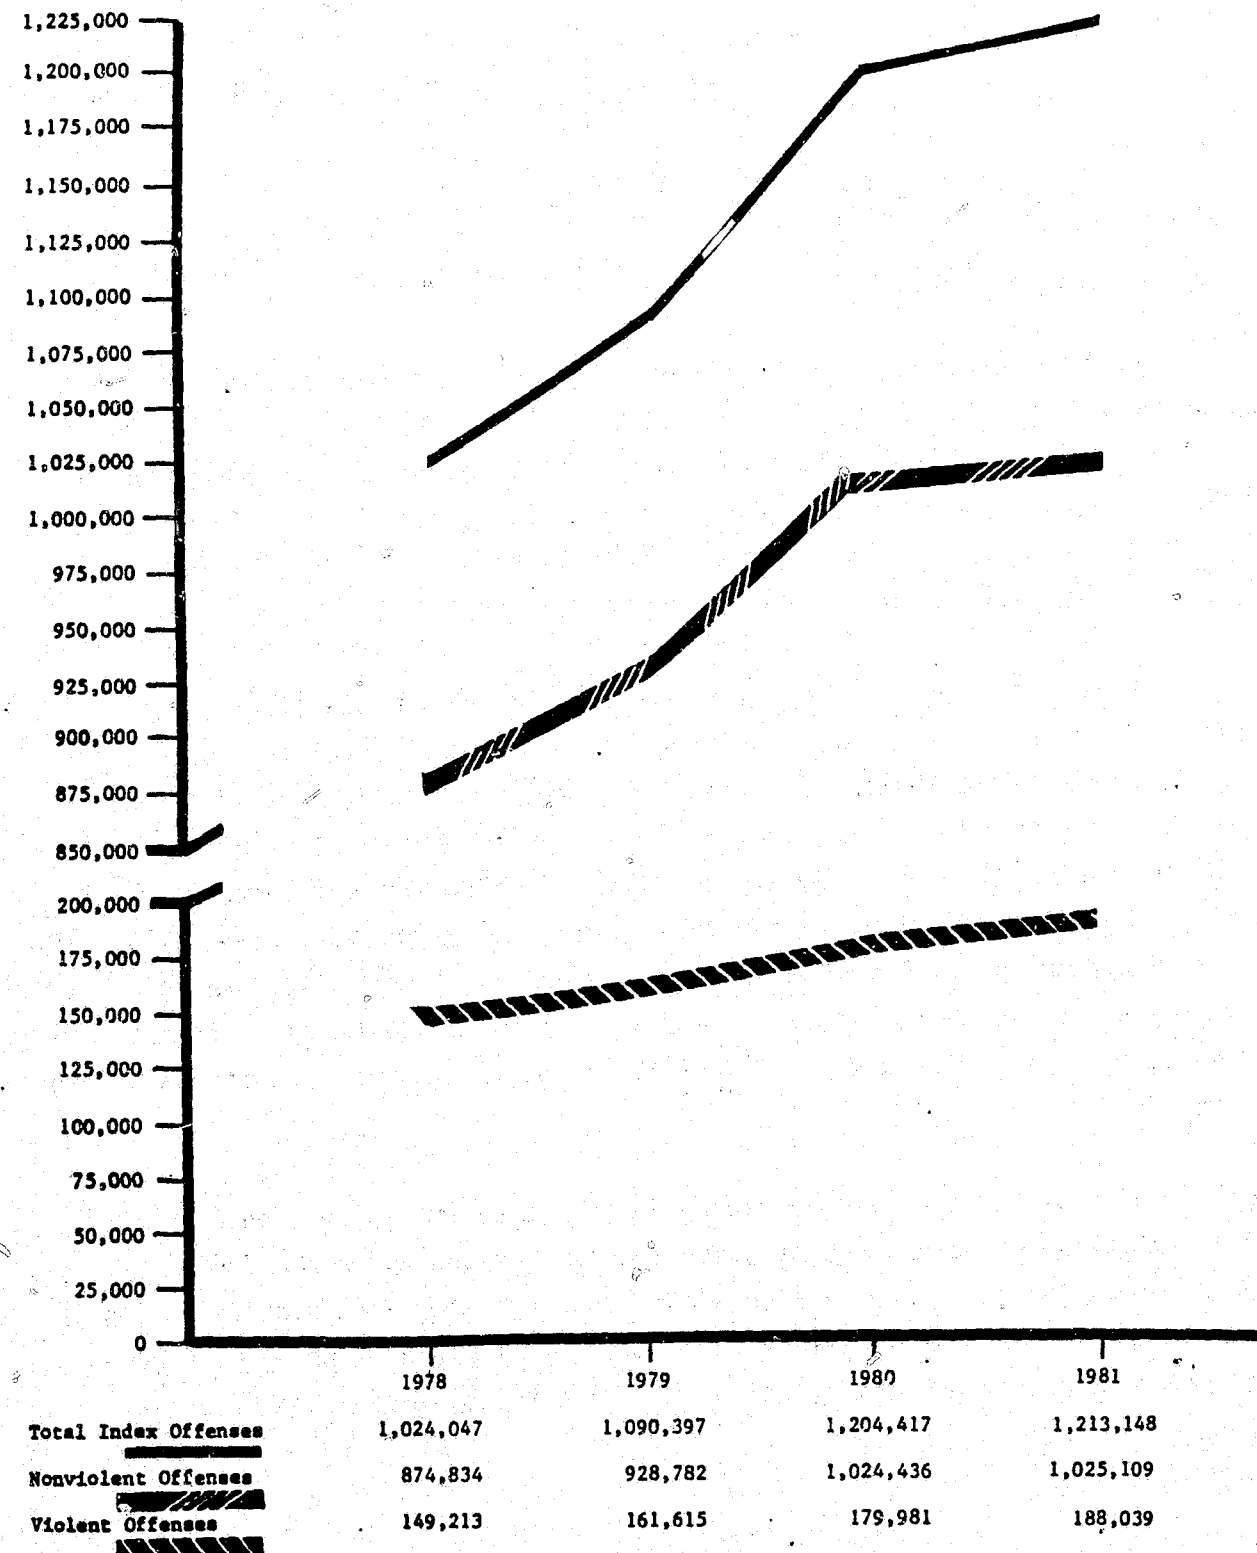

The State's nine criminal justice agencies employed 32,599 individuals during 1980-81. Of this workforce, the Department of Correctional Services employed 12,426 or 38.1% and the Judiciary, 11,564 or 35.5%. The remaining seven State agencies employed 8,609 individuals.

During 1980, local governments reported 54,115 individuals employed by municipal police agencies. Uniformed personnel comprised 46,383 or 85.7% of this group, civilian personnel 7,732 or 14.3%. Approximately 32,227 or 59.6% of all local police personnel were employed by the Police Department of the City of New York.

Local probation agencies supported 3,440 local probation personnel. Sixty-six and one-half percent of these individuals worked for upstate probation agencies; 33.5% for the New York City Probation Department. During the same period, upstate counties employed 6,425 individuals in local sheriff departments of which 3,998 were uniformed personnel, 1,793 were custodial staff, and 634 were civilian employees.

Figure 3 of this report presents total Index offenses, categorized by violent and non-violent offenses, for the years 1978 through 1981. In 1981,

NEW YORK STATE
VIOLENT, NONVIOLENT AND TOTAL INDEX OFFENSES
1978 - 1981

these offenses totaled 1,213,718 in New York State. This represented only a 0.7% increase over the 1980 figure but a 18.5% increase over the 1978 figure.

Violent offenses accounted for 15.5% of the Index total in 1981, and non-violent accounted for 84.5%.

METHODOLOGY

I. CRIMINAL JUSTICE EXPENDITURE DATA (Appendix A)

STATE LEVEL EXPENDITURES:

Tables were developed listing State criminal justice agencies and their respective appropriations for fiscal years 1978-81. Data were collected for the following agencies: the Department of Correctional Services; the Commission on Corrections; the Crime Victims Board; the Division of Criminal Justice Services; the Judiciary; the Division of Parole; the Division of Probation; the State Police; and the Division for Youth.

Appropriation data, obtained from the Legislature's Classification of Expenditures (black book), were broken into three subcategories of the General Fund: 1) State purposes fund; 2) local assistance fund; and 3) capital fund. Additionally, each category was further subdivided into the following classifications: A) main agency appropriations; B) estimated fringe; C) reappropriation; and D) other appropriate appropriation amounts. Tables identify appropriation amounts made available to each agency by the Legislature for that year; they do not represent actual expenditure levels. Estimates of fringe benefit levels were calculated at 30% of the personal service recommendations for each year.

It should be noted that some appropriations are not entirely encumbered for criminal justice purposes, such as civil court functions under the Judiciary. Other criminal justice appropriation amounts, such as for forensic facilities in the Department of Mental Hygiene, have not been included. However, figures developed should provide an indication of at least a minimum level of State investment.

LOCAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE EXPENDITURES

Local criminal justice expenditure data were obtained through the Office of the State Comptroller, from the annual financial reports submitted to them under Article 3, Section 30 of the General Municipal Law by all county, village, town, and city governments throughout New York State.

Required expenditure information contained in the annual financial reports was identified and existing computer programs at the Office of the State Comptroller were modified to provide the necessary tabulation.

Data elements reported by local agencies were selected and combined into the following six criminal justice expenditure categories: court; prosecution and defense services; probation; police; sheriff; and corrections.

Some of these categories contain expenditures not entirely allocated for criminal justice purposes, i.e., the courts. However, some costs of the criminal justice system are contained in cost centers such as public safety administration which includes expenditures for purposes other than criminal justice and could not be separated from the larger categories. These costs were not collected for purposes of this study. In addition, it should be noted that expenditure data for several municipalities for 1981 were not available. However, estimates could be made based on 1980 data submitted for these localities. It seems reasonable to assume that total dollar figures collected indicate at least a minimum level of local criminal justice spending and do not over inflate those expenditures.

II. CRIMINAL JUSTICE PERSONNEL DATA (Appendix B)

State Agency Criminal Justice Personnel:

Staffing levels were developed for each State criminal justice agency from personnel levels recommended in the executive budgets for fiscal years 1978 through 1981.

LOCAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE AGENCY PERSONNEL

Staffing levels for municipal police agencies and local sheriff's departments were obtained through information provided to the Division of Criminal Justice Services for the State's uniform crime reporting personnel system (UCR). Figures include civilian as well as uniform personnel and identified custodial and other staff for local sheriff's departments.

III. CRIME RATE DATA (APPENDIX C)

Crime index rates for Part I Uniform Crime Reporting offenses by county have been taken from the Division of Criminal Justice Services' Annual Crime and Justice Reports.
