THE HISTORY OF NEVADA PAROLE AND PROBATION

SECTION I

INTRODUCTION

The people of the State of Nevada first expressed a recognition that all offenders were not the same and with time some offenders could change, in 1864 when they caused to be written into the Nevada Constitution Article 5, Sub-Section 14, thereby giving "The Governor, Justices of the Supreme Court and Attorney General, or a major part of them, of whom the Governor shall be one", the authority to "remit fines and forfeitures, commute punishments, and grant pardons", subject to such regulations as may be provided by law".

In 1867 the Nevada legislature passed into law an act to regulate and make effectual the power of the Governor, Justices of the Supreme Court, and Attorney General to remit fines and forfeiture, commute punishments, and grant pardons after conviction".

During the period of 1867 to 1909 most offenders released from the Nevada State Prison prior to the expiration of their sentence, were released by way of a commutation of sentence granted by this authority, which in effect amounted to a discharge from their sentence.

In 1909 the legislators passed into law "an act to establish a Board of Parole Commissioners for the parole of, and government of, paroled prisoners". This Board was comprised of the Governor, the Justices of the Supreme Court, and the Attorney General, and the law in effect merely expanded the authority of the existing "Pardons Board". This law also designated the "Governor's private secretary" as the secretary of the Board and required paroled prisoners to report to him "at least once a month, during the time they are on parole". This monthly report was usually made by letter.

In 1929 the law was amended to require service of one year of the sentence to become eligible for parole, made ineligible for parole those who had previously been convicted of a felony and prohibited prisoners on parole from leaving the state without permission from the Board. This law also extended the privilege of parole to those imprisoned in a county jail.

It is interesting to note that under this statute parolees from a county jail were required to report twice per month and the parolees from the prison were only required to report once per month. Again the reports were usually made by letter.

In 1933 the law was again changed and the Chief Clerk of the Nevada State Prison was made the Secretary of the Parole Board, with all parolees reporting to him.

This statute also made ineligible for parole those prisoners who had been previously convicted more than three times of a felony.

In 1945 the legislature passed "an act to regulate and make effectual the power of the Governor, Justices of the Supreme Court, and Attorney General to remit fines and forfeitures, commute punishments, and grant pardons after convictions; create the State Board of Parole Commissioners, defined its powers and duties; provide for appointment of parole officers, define their powers and duties and make an appropriation therefore".

In effect this act established the true beginning of a Parole Department under the jurisdiction of a State Board of Pardon and Parole Commissioners and the first Nevada Parole Officer was appointed on July 1, 1945, who was subsequently designated as the first Chief Parole Officer, with a staff consisting of one secretary.

In 1949 the second Chief Parole Officer was appointed and the State of Nevada became the 46th state to become a member of the Interstate Parole Compact.

This was a significant act in that it now allowed Nevada to send parolees to their home state under courtesy supervision by that state whereas in the past parolees were allowed to return to their home state with no supervision which placed Nevada in a position of disfavor by these states.

In 1950 Article 5, Section 14 of the Nevada Constitution was amended to authorize the legislature to pass laws conferring upon the district courts the authority to "suspend the execution of sentences, fix the conditions for, and to grant probation" and in 1951 the legislature passed an act enabling the courts to suspend sentence and grant probation, establishing and designating parole officers as parole and probation officers and giving them the responsibility of preparing reports for the court and providing supervision for those granted probation, under the supervision of the Board of Pardons and Paroles.

To deal with this additional responsibility, one additional officer was added to the Department in 1951, which brought the officer staff of the Department to one Chief Parole and Probation Officer and one assistant Parole and Probation Officer, in 1953 an additional officer was appointed and assigned to Las Vegas and in 1954 an additional officer was appointed and assigned to Reno.

In 1957 the legislature passed into law an act relieving the State Board of Pardons and Parole responsibilities relating to parole and probation, redesignating them as the Board of Pardons and created a State Board of Parole Commissioners consisting of the Chief Parole Officer as the chairman and four members appointed by the Governor. With the exception of the Chief Parole Officer, this was a lay board that met regularly in the spring and fall of each year for the purpose of considering parole and received $25.00 for each days attendance at meetings, together with per diem expenses and travel expenses.

In 1959 the law was amended and among other things, increased the membership of the Board to give members appointed by the Governor, the authority to elect one of the members as Chairman and appoint a Chief Parole and Probation Officer, who would also serve as secretary to the Board.

This statute also gave the Board of Parole Commissioners full responsibility in the matter of the operation of the Parole and Probation Department, through the Chief Parole and Probation Officer, and also gave the Chief Parole Officer the authority to divide the state into parole and probation districts.

An additional officer was added in 1959 and assigned to the Las Vegas area, and the state was then divided into three districts. District I was centered in Carson City and supervised and provided services to the portions of the state not served by District II, located in Reno, or District III, located in Las Vegas.

District I was staffed by the Chief Parole and Probation Officer and one assistant Parole and Probation Officer; District II was staffed with one assistant Parole and Probation Officer; District III was staffed with two assistant Parole and Probation Officers.

Parole and Probation matters operated essentially without change during the period of 1959 to 1964, however, in 1964, a decision by the Nevada Supreme Court (Raggio vs. Board of Parole Commissioners) resulted in a whole new prospective of parole in Nevada and many changes in the law concerning parole in subsequent legislatures occurred. This resulted in virtually all offenders who were released from the prison being placed under parole supervision.

Also in 1964 the third Chief Parole and Probation Officer was appointed.

Due to the major revision of the law concerning parole that occurred in 1965, attention was directed toward the matter concerning parole and probation as it had previously existed in Nevada and it was recognized that if these programs were to be effective both from the standpoint of the protection of the community and the rehabilitation of the offender, meaningful supervision was a key factor and the hiring of nine additional parole and probation officers was authorized.

This was a turning point for the Department and initiated a change from a "make do" system of parole and probation to a professional system of parole and probation.

Qualifying standards for the appointment of parole and probation officers on a competitive basis were established. A Chief Parole and Probation Officer, who was a professional with many years experience was appointed. A position of Deputy Chief Parole and Probation Officer was established and filled. A new district was established in the eastern part of the state and headquartered in Elko, additional staff was added to the existing districts, a standard for supervision was established and community resources for the assistance of those under supervision were developed.

Although these accomplishments were not in final form, it was a great step forward and set the pattern for the future development of the department.

In 1967, the fifth Chief Parole and Probation Officer was appointed and in 1968, the sixth Chief Parole and Probation Officer was appointed and in 1969, by an act of legislation, the Division of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs was created and placed under the supervision of the Chief Parole and Probation Officer, where it remained until 1971, at which time it was transferred to the Department of Law Enforcement Assistance.

In 1971, the seventh Chief Parole and Probation Officer was appointed and the Department of Parole and Probation entered into a decade of growth and development unprecedented in the history of the Department.

During the period of 1970 to 1980, the number of presentence investigations conducted increased from 705 in 1970 to 3,160 in 1980, (450%) and the number of those received under probation supervision increased from 372 in 1970 to 1,999 in 1980 (537%), and those offenders received under parole supervision increased from 143 in 1970 to 701 in 1980 (490%). Probationers received under Interstate Compact increased from 179 in 1970 to 470 in 1980, (262%) and parolees received under Interstate Compact increased from 91 in 1970 to 193 in 1980 (212%).

The number of parole and probation officers in the Department increased from 22 in 1970 to 117 in 1980 (532%).

During the years many changes within the Department occurred. The number of staff in all districts was increased. District boundaries were changed, special units within the larger districts were created, mandatory training for new officers was established, a position of training officer was established together with ongoing training programs for staff. A formal monthly reporting system for both the officers and the districts was established, together with a unit system for regulating case workloads. Positions for two psychologists (one in the north and one in the south) were created to supervise specialized caseloads; community services, including both inpatient and outpatient treatment facilities for those clients in need of such treatment were developed.

In 1973 the legislature created a new position of Executive Secretary to the Parole Board, to be filled by appointment by the Board, thereby relieving the Chief Parole and Probation Officer of the time consuming duties of that position.

Also in 1973, the legislature passed into law an act creating a work release program that would allow selected inmates of the prison, who were within six months of release from the prison, to leave the secure custody of the prison and work at employment in the community, under the supervision of the Department of Parole and Probation.

In 1975, the legislature passed into law an act that allowed the court and the Parole Board to impose as a condition of probation or parole, a special condition requiring the offender to pay restitution to the victim of his offense through the Department of Parole and Probation.

In 1977, the legislature passed into law an act creating a full time, salaried Board of Parole Commissioners, consisting of a Chairman and two members appointed by the Governor. This act also separated the Department of Parole and Probation from the Board of Parole Commissioners by placing the Department of Parole and Probation under the supervision of the Chief Parole and Probation Officer, who is now appointed by the Governor.

In 1978 a new Parole and Probation district was established and headquartered in Fallon.

In 1981, the legislature authorized the establishment of multi-purpose facilities to house felony offender probation cases in need of services that could be provided in this type of facility. The first such facility was established in Las Vegas in late 1981 and received its first residents the spring of 1982. The second such facility is in the planning stage for Reno.

Volunteers In Probation (V.I.P.) Program

Nevada Adult Parole and Probation has long recognized the benefits of Volunteers and Student Interns and we initially operated with the assistance of an L.E.A.A. grant from 1975-1977. The grant was not renewed and the VIP program existed on the "volunteer efforts" of Probation and Parole Officers until 1981 when the legislature authorized a VIP Coordinator position, presently located in the Las Vegas office, with statewide responsibilities. Each district office has one local coordinator, who also carries a full caseload. During these times of dwindling resources and increased offender caseloads, VIPs enable the agency to continue with and supplement existing community supervision services, and other department functions.

The VIPs perform a myriad of services under the supervision of a VIP Coordinator or officer. Individual district needs determine duties, i.e., clerical assistants, employment developers and counselors, trained and certified preliminary hearing officers, trained and certified transportation officers, restitution technicians (tracking and record keeping of restitution accounts), pre-sentence investigators (victim-witness interviews), drug and alcohol abuse counselors, domestic crisis counselors, foreign language translators, dependant client advocates, professional consultants, (i.e., bankers, insurance brokers), tutors, court runners, and duty officers. Many VIP duties are precisely those of officers with one exception: they are not peace officers and for the most part they are not involved in law enforcement functions. Our VIPs come from every strata of the community: students, housewives, professionals, retired individuals, handicapped, service organizations, and law enforcement. Their abilities and time allow staff to supplement and enhance community supervision goals and aims.

Since October, 1981, approximately 115 active VIPs statewide have been recruited. Since January, 1982, 11,768 volunteer hours have been logged. The National Council on Crime and Delinquency appropriates the figure of $4.65 per volunteer hour, thus savings to the state and department equals $54,721.00. Approximately 50 client cases are supervised by volunteers. These clients are afforded more intensive supervision and supportive services. The benefits to the offender, community, and our department, certainly validate this program.

The department sponsors a pre-parole class entitled "The Street Readiness Program", currently in operation at the Northern Nevada and Southern Nevada Correctional facilities (See Street Readiness Program). This is a three week program staffed entirely by volunteer representatives from numerous city, county, state and federal agencies, private organizations and concerned citizens. They share their expertise and knowledge with familiar life skills topic areas. This program has operated for nearly two years at no cost, through volunteer efforts. The benefits are many in terms of preparing offenders for their upcoming adjustment to "free-living" and educating them as to services and support systems available in communities.

The department is proud of its corps of volunteers who give so unselfishly for the benefit of our community.

Nevada Street Readiness Program

The Nevada Street Readiness Program, first instituted in March, 1981, at the Northern Correctional Center is under direction of the Department of Parole and Probation in cooperation with the Nevada Department of Prisons. The program's basic format consists of a classroom setting for those inmates about to be released back to the community on parole, and those committed for 120-day evaluation who are returning to the court for sentencing. These inmates become students three hours a day for a period of three weeks just prior to their release. They are instructed in the basic expectations of a parole and probation agreement, plus a variety of human relations and social skills, employment, citizenship and financial responsibility skills during this period of intensive instruction. The combined effort of some 30 to 40 community volunteers are aimed at motivating the inmate to "make it on the street" rather than return to prison on a new conviction or a parole and probation violation.

Thus far, the Street Readiness Program has graduated close to 400 inmates, since March, 1981. An initial study of the recidivism rate of these graduates appear to show only a 10 to 15% recidivist rate of Street Readiness graduates as compared to the normal 30 to 40% recidivist rate of a normal parolee without the benefit of Street Readiness instruction. The agency is making a concerted effort to validate this preliminary study based on a first year group comparison to a control group now being selected.

During April, 1982, the program was expanded to the Women's Prison. It is held once every two months for 2 weeks, in the evenings for the women prisoners.

August, 1982, marks the expansion of the program to the Southern Nevada Correctional Center at Jean, Nevada where 29 inmates are expected to graduate September 23, 1982.

The agency has a long range plan to expand the Street Readiness Program to its district field offices where it will be adapted for use among new probationers in an effort to "keep them on the street" and avoid revocation or commitments to prison. The feasibility of using Street Readiness concepts among new probationers has already been partially tested as several dozen 120-day cases have completed the Street Readiness Program while at Northern Nevada Correctional Center. Early indications are that they have been positively impacted by the program as probationers. We are in hopes of obtaining financing for several video tape recorders and TV monitors to equip our ten field offices in an adequate manner so as to start this program about March, 1983, in our field offices.

Intensive Supervision Program

In the Las Vegas and Reno offices, an Intensive Supervision Unit exists. It is designed to service those in the client population designated either as career criminals, serious drug abusers/users or in sales, or those who have specialized dependent needs. Caseloads for officers in these units are reduced and expectations of supervision are increased. It is felt that through a more intensive involvement in the supervision of these cases that the needs of the community will be best met. This is done through counseling, surveillance and referral.

Talbert House Program

The 1981 Legislature authorized the establishment of two multi-purpose facilities, one to be located in the north and one in the southern part of the state. The agency was given the option to contract out for the provision of these facilities or to operate the facilities itself. The department chose to contract out choosing long-term expertise of an Ohio based corporation. Talbert House completed site selection and leased a facility in November, 1981. Renovation was accomplished and first residents were received in the program in March, 1982 in Las Vegas, Nevada.

The facilities are designed for those offenders who have not served prior prison terms, but who have been convicted of felony offenses in Nevada district courts. The facilities are co-educational.

Staffing is 24-hours a day and onsite individual and group counseling as well as referral and information services are available through the program. The period is short-term with an ideal goal of from 60 to 120 days residence. Those in the program are expected to pay room and board to offset the costs of the program.

The program is operative in the Las Vegas area at the present, but has not yet been expanded to the Reno area.

The department views the availability of a residential facility for those requiring structure and the assistance offered through the programming efforts of staff as a viable alternative to incarceration and a resource necessary for the Nevada Criminal Justice System.

Job Developer Program

In 1976, pursuant to a federal grant a full-time job developer position was created in District IV, Las Vegas. Operating under the philosophy that employment is the key to success and that unemployed offenders are prone to create more problems within the community, it was that officer's full-time job to canvas community employers and in effect create a "job bank" from which supervising officers could draw to assist clients with employment. The program experienced success, but at the expiration of the two year federal grant, the position was not refunded by the state, thus the formal program was dissolved. Employment assistance reverted to individual officer resources and the cooperation of ESD.

This situation continued statewide until early 1981 when in District II, Reno, during the realignment of senior officer assignments, the responsibility for acting as a job resource person was given to a particular staff member who had extensive area knowledge and many contacts throughout the community. At that juncture, the operation was still informal but began to pay dividends. In August, 1981, the responsibility of that senior officer became more formalized and records of his project were kept. A pre-record survey of the percentage of clients unemployed in that district at that time was made and it was found to be approximately 17%. Since September 1, 1981, the percentage of unemployed clients has been reduced, at one point in mid-1982 as low as 10%.

District Warrant Units

The formalized position includes screening, referral and tracking of clients involved in the job referral program. Continued public relations are maintained in the employer community. Efforts to provide a resource for bonding have been successful, and a volunteer has been recruited to assist in the job development process, as the assigned officer continues to additionally carry an active caseload.

The department views the establishment of job developer positions in the large urban areas especially, as a high priority. In this depressed economic setting, offenders face grave difficulties in the employment arena. It is through a concentrated effort on the part of dedicated professionals that jobs in the work sector are generated for this agency's clientele.

Community Service

Community service as a condition of probation: The 1981 Legislature authorized the inclusion of community service as a condition of probation pursuant to SB 13. This provides that a probationer be ordered to complete a period of supervised community service work. During the legislative sessions, the Voluntary Action Center of Reno was extremely interested in the provisions of this proposed legislation. Initial contact was made with VAC by the department at that time and as the bill progressed and was finally enacted as law, the communications between the agency and VAC continued. Organizational efforts and problem solving resulted finally in a contract between VAC and this agency to provide the placement and supervision of probationers in community service endeavors. This contract was finally executed by all parties in June, 1982, therefore, it was not until the summer of 1982 that a formalized process to recommend and monitor community service as a condition of probation was actually instituted pursuant to SB 13.

In September 1982, the Las Vegas office was asked to make contact with the Voluntary Action Center there in an effort to implement the same kind of cooperative agreement in that locale. Efforts are now underway in that district to discuss community service work as a condition of probation with the courts, District Attorney's Office, defense attorneys, department staff as well as VAC.

The rural communities have also been asked to embark on a formal organized approach to utilizing the options provided by SB 13. In some jurisdictions in the rural areas, community service has been an ongoing order of the court even prior to SB 13.

The agency is in the process of gathering statistics regarding the full utilization of this option. Department recommendations for community service work, number of recommendations being followed and ordered by the court, placements being made and number of hours being contributed will all be part of information available during the next biennium.

The agency is enthusiastic about having available this additional option when making recommendations to the court and in providing some return to the community by the offender in repayment for the offenses committed.

The department has had a Special Service Unit on the Central Office level for sometime. However, in April, 1981, it became apparent that additional fugitive tracking was warranted in the urban districts of Reno and Las Vegas. The department made the assumption that absconder fugitives had remained in Nevada communities undetected, largely supporting themselves through continued criminal activity. Based on this assumption, special warrant officer caseloads were initiated in Reno and Las Vegas, the purpose of which was to research fugitive files and select those which it appeared reasonable to believe were still in Nevada and to make extensive attempts to locate these violators.

Since the caseloads were initiated in 1981, a total of 139 absconders have been apprehended through the warrant officer fugitive recovery units, 97 in Las Vegas and 42 in Reno. Based on these statistics, the extension of fugitive search activities to districts has proven to be of great value in protecting the community through fugitive apprehension.

Restitution

The repayment of restitution by offenders to the victims of crime has been a vital component of rehabilitation programming within the agency for many years. Special emphasis over the last three years has been given to the collection of restitution as evidenced by the establishment in Las Vegas and Reno of special units designed in part to give special attention to the collection of restitution. Through these special caseloads and the efforts made by staff on behalf of victims, the Department has improved its collection rate by 25% to 30% respectively in those two districts. There are a total of 1102 single victim accounts and 386 multiple victim accounts statewide.

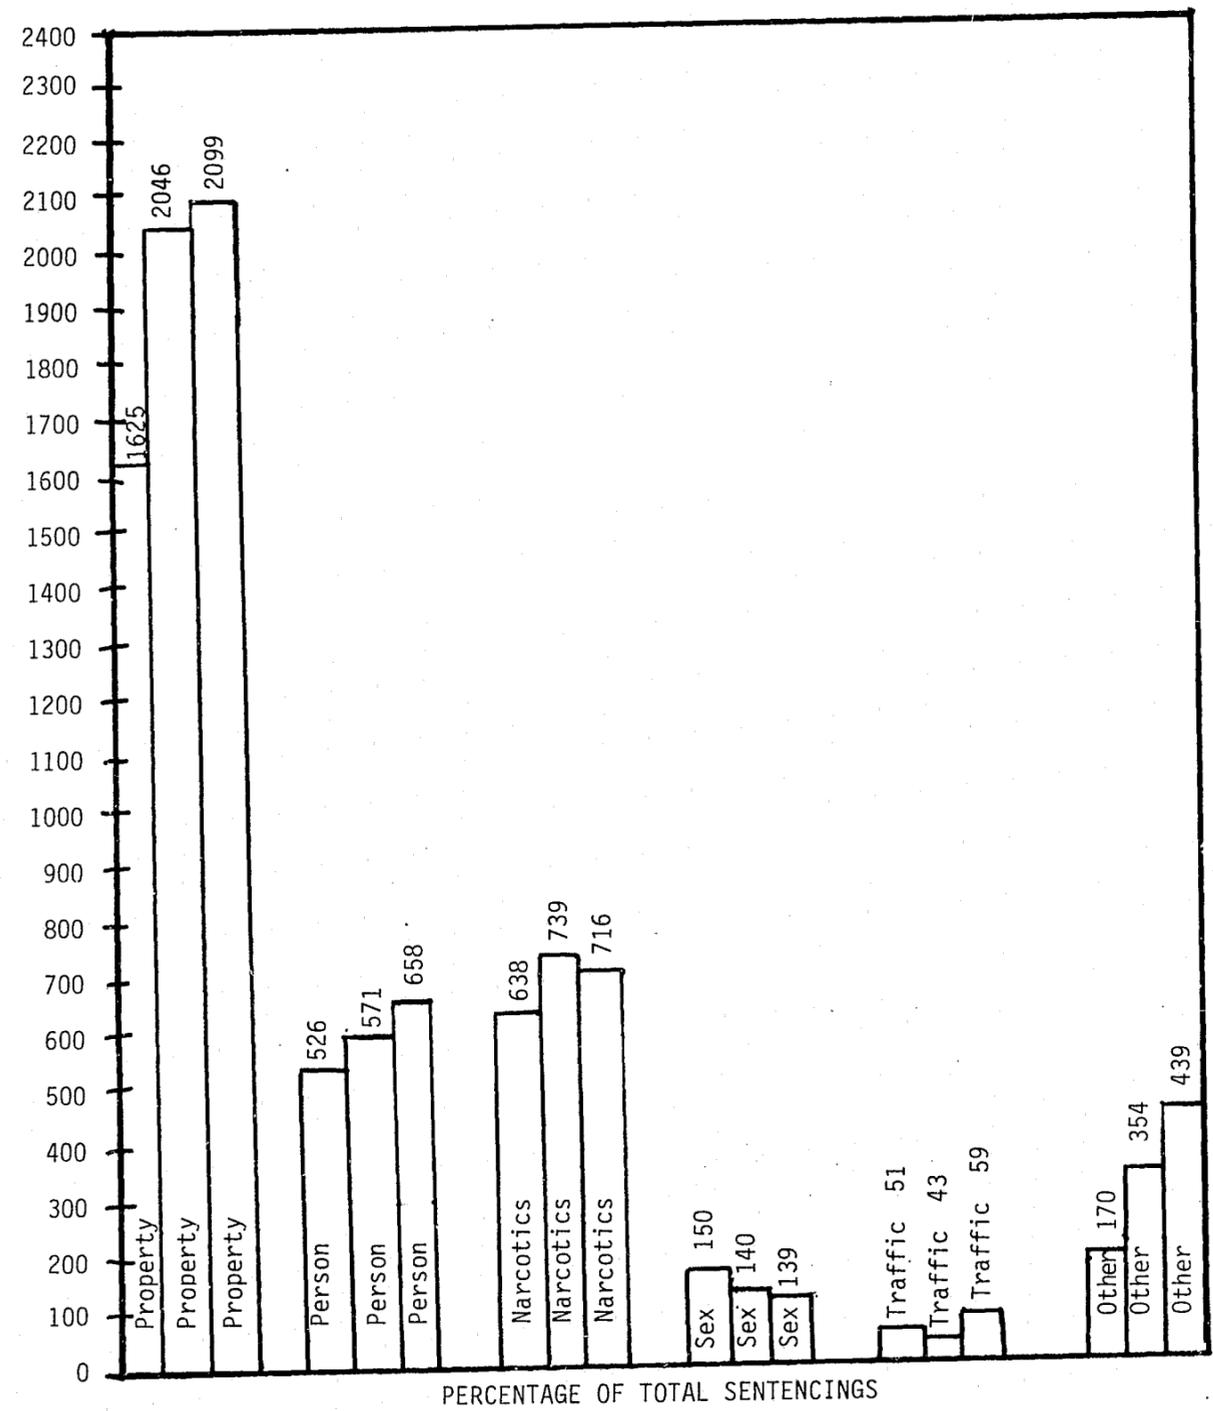

For fiscal year 1980/81 restitution collected statewide totalled $395,312.53. For fiscal year 1981/82 the total collected statewide was $499,617.15. The agency feels that providing services to victims through the collection of restitution is a crucial function of the department.
