

Appendix B: State-Level Estimates of the Prevalence of Crime

The graphs in this appendix depict the state-level small area estimates of the 3-year average prevalence of crime. The estimates are in the form of percents, either as a percentage of persons or of households. Estimates for 1999-2013 were not produced originally, so only the current estimates for 2007-2018 are shown.

For purposes of comparison, each graph also shows the national rates of either total violent or total property crime, as a dotted line, for 2012-2018, based on values published in BJS's Criminal Victimization series. The order is the same as in Appendix A: Violent crime rates are shown first, both by type of crime and relationship to the perpetrator, for all of the states. A single display of the estimates of property crime rates in each state follows.
